Reflections of S. U. I. . .

The State University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, in one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, Anno Domini—for most of you that time and place will take on significance. Inevitably, certain memories, certain sensations and emotions will become synonymous with that year, that place. Perhaps 1948 will count as a milestone in your life—or it may simply recall the nightmare that was your first speech in comm. skills. For some of you the university will always mean the excitement of new worlds to conquer. For others, it has been the focal point of that desire to know. What do you remember? A basketball game? A sentence from a final lecture? People? Saturday afternoons at Don's? Maybe for you Iowa is all of those things—for you learned that knowledge, and truth, and even wisdom, pop up at the darndest times and in the darndest places.

You see, it doesn't matter; it doesn't matter whether you drove a red convertible to class, or walked a mile to see a play; it doesn't matter that you lived in a trailer and the fellow sitting next to you in History of Ideas roomed at the Quad. The physical aspects don't matter—because you shared an experience, and yet that experience was, in another way, just your own and no one else's.

That's why this book, the HAWKEYE of 1948, is only an image of the State University of Iowa with its 10,000 students and 400-some acres of campus. If you are one of the lucky ones, you have felt the heartbeat of the real university; you know its prejudices and ideals, the direction of its pattern. You realize that beneath the surface of routine and red tape and protocol, lies greatness.

But, as we said, this book can show only that surface, only the image. It cannot reproduce, it can only reflect your university, for even though your life here forms a part of the image, yet the reality is deep within each of you.

So all we can hope is that in looking through the 1948 HAWKEYE, you will feel the urge to reach back and beyond the reflection to touch that reality—the reality that is the University of Iowa.

Somehow you always thought the same thoughts every time you passed the same spot. You had nice words for the cooling breezes that blew across the river in wintertime. Old Capitol reminded you of the bald-headed prof who fought capitalism in every lecture. Once in a while you thought about how it would feel to be a full professor, but that wasn't very often because that grade point was a steady battle. The chem building stinks and that awful hill . . . You wanted a cup of coffee when you passed the Union. The pigeons roosting on East hall reminded you of a joke that wasn't too polite. It was like you were seeing the same pictures with the same captions every time.

- Personalities

The Campus

Maybe you've never seen the Union bridge from quite this angle before. But it'll remind some of you of lazy afternoons at Iowa, of sunlight on the river, soft Spring days. . . .

. . . And most of you can't help but remember the winters at S. U. I. But long after you've forgotten the below-zero weather, those slippery hills, and that chill wind off the river, you'll remember the special charm of the first snowfall on campus, the silent splendor of the Law Commons perched on a cliff overlooking the river from the west. And even the University hospital towers looked less formidable in Iowa's winter wonderland.

Then there was the New Look of 1947-48 . . . But S. U. I. had it long before 1947. Trailers, quonset huts, baby carriages were all indications that the university was growing up. Above is Hawkeye Village as seen from across the river with the Pentacrest in the background. To the left, an important part of Iowa's New Look tries his luck across the river from the University theater.

Thousands of you jostled down this walk from basketball, football games. Some of you came this way from the hospital or medical laboratories. If you lived at the Quadrangle or Hillcrest, the trek across the river to east campus was a familiar one. Remember how it all looked in the Spring?

School, books, classes, a vital part of University life. Your favorite class sometimes met out on the lawn after the days grew warmer and the ground was no longer damp. You saw the women's physical education classes hurry down the hill to the playing fields. And across the street students turned into the Geology building while farther up the hill the Law students came out in the sun for a smoke.

From almost any place on campus you could see it—the gold dome of Old Capitol, S. U. I.'s most famous landmark. Here is Old Capitol, flanked by University hall, and the Physics building, as seen from the west side of the river.

... "Ripples from these quiet waters."
The old quarry pool at the foot of the Law Commons' cliff.

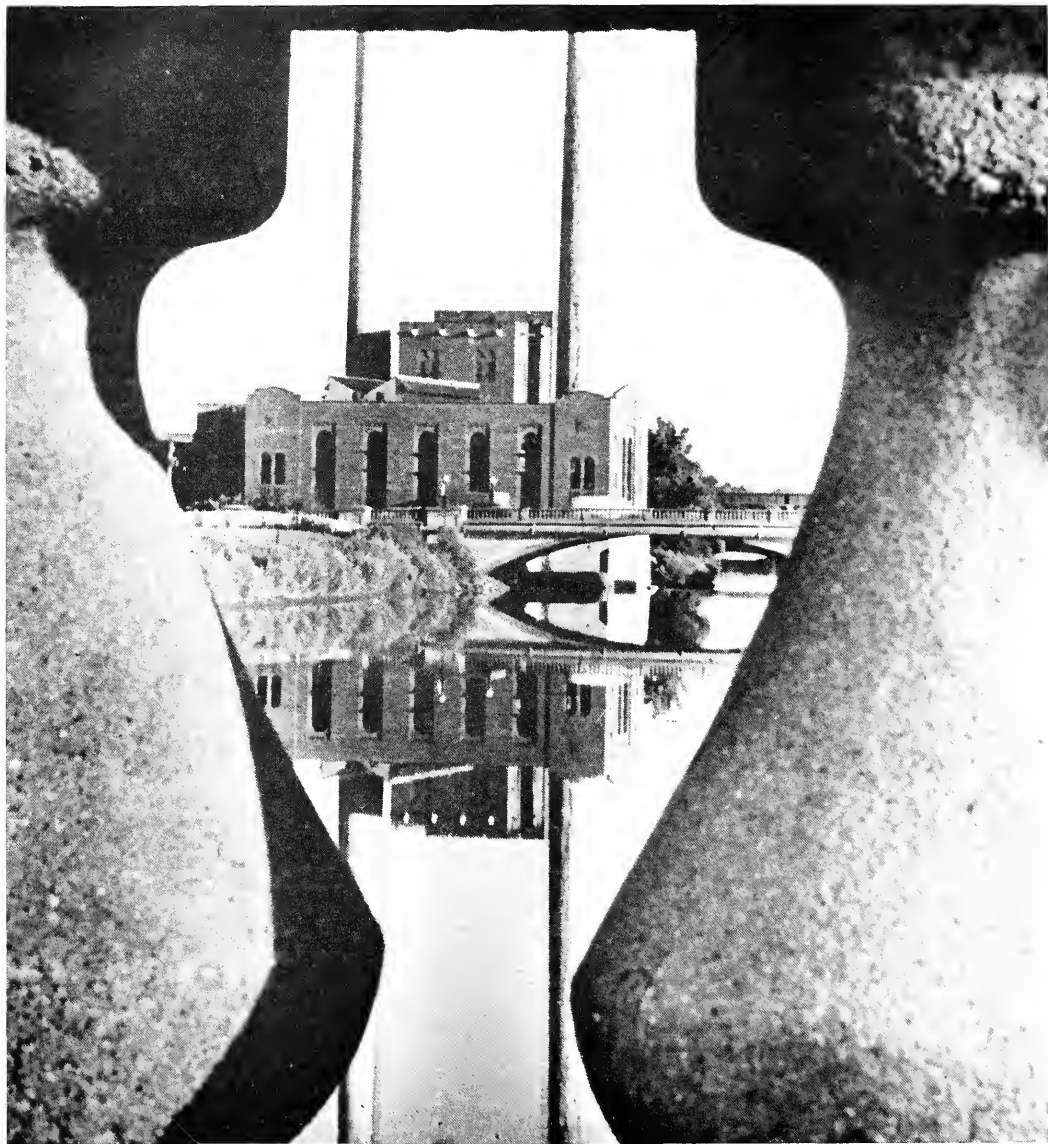

University Hall . . . You've had at least one class here during your four years at Iowa. You've made countless trips to the University treasurer's office, to the office of the Registrar. And this year there was the office of student affairs to make it truly University hall.

. . . S. U. I.'s own theater and one of the best in the country. If you were majoring in dramatic arts, you received here some of the best training possible. If you were part of the great university audience, you every year enjoyed excellent experimental and current plays.

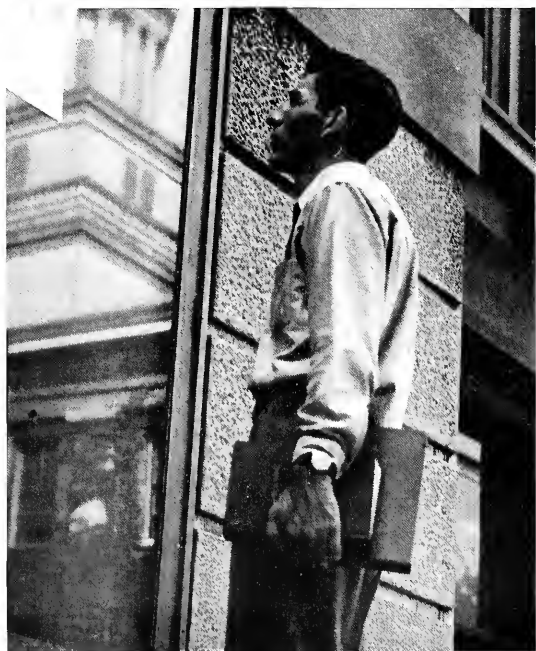

You've seen the Iowa river at flood crest—and you've seen it glassy enough to mirror the hydraulics lab, the smokestacks beyond. S. U. I.'s school of engineering is famous the world over for its work in hydraulics engineering.

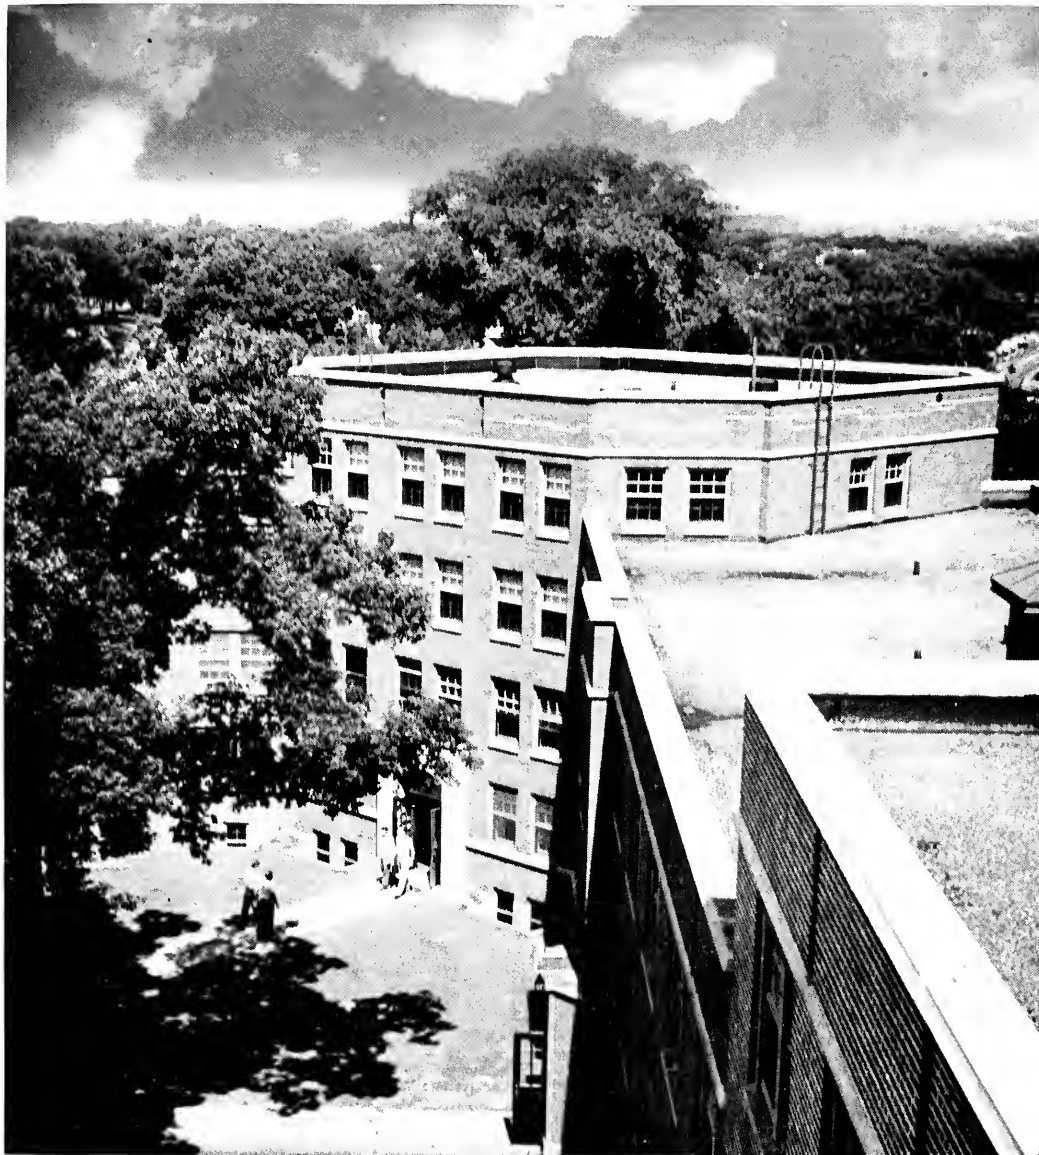

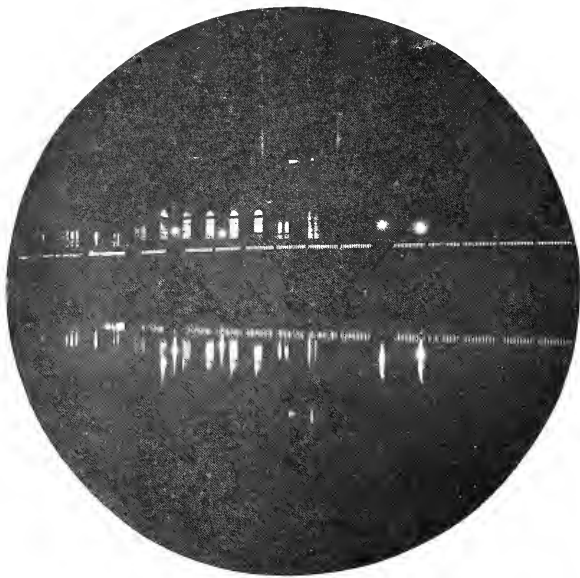

Its modernistic lines blending into the landscape, the beautiful art building sets on the west bank of the river. Home of an art department acclaimed throughout the United States, hundreds of art students have crossed the river daily to its studios. Hundreds of other Iowa students have viewed the art exhibits, attended art forums and lectures there.

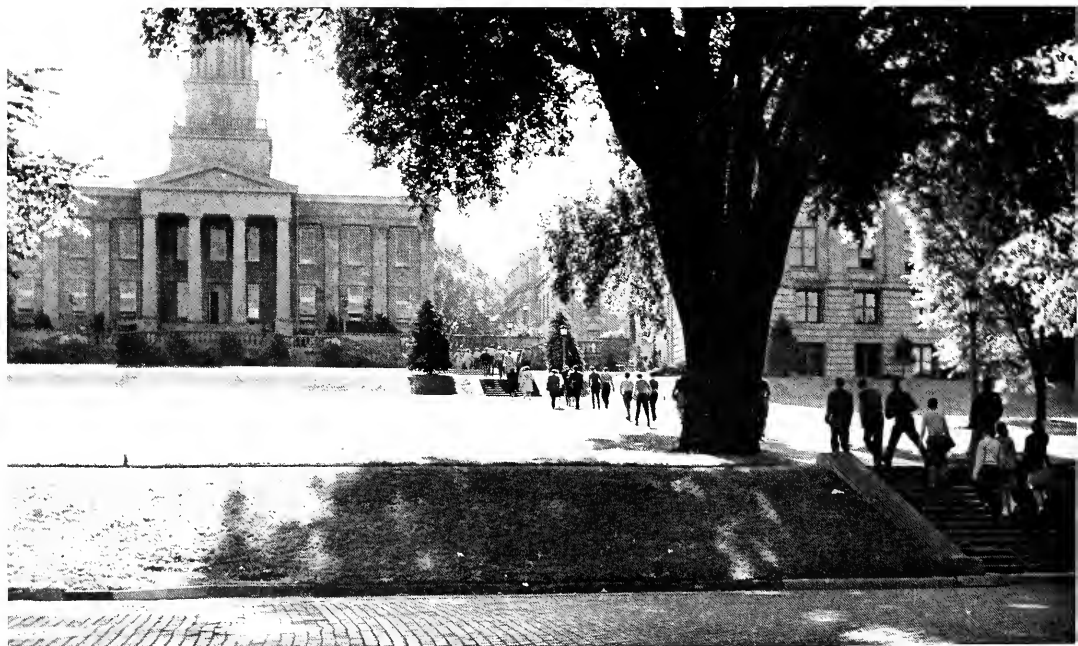

The west approach to Old Capitol . . . Almost any spring or fall afternoon you saw students gathered on the shady, rolling lawns to study, talk, loaf. And wherever you were, it seemed, you were never far from Old Capitol. Even the familiar bulletin boards outside Schaeffer and Macbride halls cast a reflection of the dome.

A Hawk's-eye view of Hillcrest, newest of men's dormitories. Built shortly before the war, Hillcrest has had a variety of residents since. There are even a few S. U. I. coeds who can remember living for a year at Hillcrest. In 1947-48, however, Hillcrest was once more very much occupied by men students.

Reflections at night . . . You always felt a little thrill at coming back to Iowa City at dusk. As you came in from the west, it always seemed that the lights of the whole university were reflected in the Iowa river.

You almost enjoyed those 7:30 classes when Spring came around. There was something about coming up across the river on a fresh Spring morning that gave you a good feeling. It made you glad suddenly that You were You—and lucky enough to be here at the State University of Iowa.

PRESIDENT VIRGIL M. HANCHER

A MESSAGE TO YOU

From President Hancher

THE second century begins. The University's first century has ended, and its second century opens before us. What of hope and promise does the second century bring?

Foresight is among the most fallible of human attributes, and the gift of prophecy is bestowed but rarely on the sons of men. He would be rash indeed who would venture to prophesy the status of the University in the year 2047 or the developments which would take it there.

It is permissible to hope, however, that certain things will come to pass. And, among others, let us hope for at least three.

Let us hope for a new sense of responsibility in the individual for all aspects of his daily life, in education, in morals, in citizenship, in family obligations. Let us hope especially that our students everywhere will come to believe that the primary responsibility for their education rests upon them. This will require a revision of thought and attitude upon the part of parents and students, and, in some instances, of faculty. It calls for a recognition of the fact that few institutions are so poor that the student cannot get an education if he is determined to have it, and that few institutions are so rich and persuasive that they can force an education upon the student who does not want it. With a changed point of view, students and faculty become allies and not adversaries in the educational process, and all recognize that the final test of the educational procedure is what goes on within the student. Nothing would free our institutions to do their proper work so much as a recognition that responsibility for his education finally rests upon the student. That this may come to pass in the next century is my first hope.

Let us also hope that our faith in education may lead us truly to provide a land of equal educational opportunity for all, so that no child shall be deprived of an education because of race, religion, color, or economic or social status. At the same time, let us reaffirm and renew our faith in the quality of excellence, and act accordingly. Does democracy have the courage to select and develop her best? Can democracy survive if it does not? Let us hope that our university can contribute to the solution of these questions within the next century.

And, finally, let us hope that we may achieve a more complete understanding of the fact that education is a lifelong process, that it goes on from birth to death, that the University, therefore, is not concerned alone with a brief span of years—two, four, six, or eight—but that it is concerned with what goes on in the minds of men and women after they have left the University. We have embarked upon a great experiment in democracy. It can succeed and survive only if our citizens are prepared to continue their education beyond their University days. The lawyer, the doctor, the dentist, and the engineer dare not practice his profession only with the knowledge he acquired in the University. The price of professional excellence is continuous study and advancement. How, then, can the citizen expect to practice his citizenship only on the knowledge acquired as a student? The price of good citizenship in a great democracy is continuous study and advancement. Let us hope that this too will be the concern of our University.

If these hopes are fulfilled, the University's next century will be truly great!

The State Board of Education is composed of nine men and women who represent the people of Iowa in governing the five state educational institutions. Board members are appointed by the Governor of the state, and they meet four times every year to appoint faculty and administrators, to approve finances and to formulate future plans for the Iowa schools. In addition to the University of Iowa, the Board also serves as a governing body for Iowa State College, Iowa State Teachers' College, the Iowa School for the Blind, and the Iowa School for the Deaf.

PHILOSOPHY: "There is good in every man. Everyone has something to contribute to this world; find his interest and the door to his friendship is open."

FAVORITE QUOTATION: "The small potatoes, few in a hill—can be applied to many instances."

ALLIN W. DAKIN
Administrative Dean

PHILOSOPHY: "Let each man be trained to give and to gain good according to his talents."

FAVORITE QUOTATION: Varies with the occasion.

CARLYLE JACOBSEN
Executive Dean of
Health Sciences and Services

E. T. PETERSON
Executive Dean of
Research and Teaching

PHILOSOPHY: "Our country provides, by a wide margin, the finest educational opportunities for the individual available on this earth. The acceptance of these opportunities imposes a high sense of personal responsibility on the part of the individual to achieve maximum growth and development, to enrich and elevate the quality of group life, and to make positive, constructive contributions to the ever enlarging social pattern of life."

FAVORITE QUOTATION: "Chance favors the prepared mind."

DEWEY B. STUIT
Dean of Student
Personnel Services

PHILOSOPHY: "Among the greatest rewards in life are those which come through the discovery of knowledge which can be used in the service of mankind."

FAVORITE QUOTATION:

From Opportunity

"They do me wrong who say I come no more

When once I knock and fail to find you in;

For every day I stand outside your door,
And bid you wake, and rise to fight and win . . ."

EARL J. McGRATH
Dean of the College
of Liberal Arts

MASON LADD
Dean of the College
of Law

PHILOSOPHY: "I believe the good life to be the life of action guided by reason. I believe that the greatest satisfactions are derived from the realization of our potentialities through socially useful activities. I believe in the infinite perfectability of men through education. I believe that through mutual aid and respect for other men, peace and well-being for all mankind may yet be achieved on earth."

QUOTATION: "Knowledge dwells in the heads replete with the thoughts of other men; Wisdom in minds attentive to their own!"

PHILOSOPHY: "Capacity is demonstrated by the results from effort. Latent qualities are empty unless accompanied by the urge and energy which makes them produce. There is still opportunity in our complex and competitive society for people to rise above the clouds."

QUOTATION: "Live a day at a time. Everything can not be done at once. Knowledge of law or any other subject is not required in omnibus, it emerges through continuous and persistent direction, step by step."

A. W. BRYAN
Dean of the College
of Dentistry

R. A. KUEVER
Dean of the College
of Pharmacy

PHILOSOPHY: "It is not easy to—admit error, apologize, begin over, take advice, be considerate, avoid mistakes, endure success, maintain a high standard, shoulder deserved blame, keep on trying—but—it always pays."

QUOTATION: "All the professors in the world would not make you a wise or good man without your cooperation; and, if such you are determined to be, the want of them will not prevail."

PHILOSOPHY: "The aim of the college of Pharmacy is to train young men and women to be well qualified pharmacists, primarily to return pharmaceutical service to the people of Iowa, to prepare the better students at the graduate level for pharmaceutical research and investigation."

QUOTATION: "In the scale of life's values good health is first, and compared with it all else drops into insignificance; hence, there is no greater challenge anywhere today than the creating of more effective and more useful medicine with which to combat disease."

PHILOSOPHY (From Faith of the Engineer): "When needed, my skill and knowledge shall be given without reservation for the public good. From special capacity springs the obligation to use it well in the service of humanity; and I accept the challenge that this implies."

QUOTATION: Varies with the occasion.

F. M. DAWSON
Dean of the College
of Engineering

PHILOSOPHY: "Be tolerant of those views and acts of others which seem contradictory to your own; suppress vanity, be honest; be generous and give to each task undertaken the best of your ability without counting cost in time and effort."

QUOTATION: Varies with the occasion.

PAUL J. BLOMMERS
Acting Dean of the College of Education

C. A. PHILLIPS
Dean of the College
of Commerce

BRUCE E. MAHAN
Dean of the Extension
Division

PHILOSOPHY: "The individual's happiness is variable, depending upon his contribution to his group and to society. Happy is the man whose capacity for service rests upon such pillars as integrity, disciplined mind and body, tolerance, objectivity, and sincere respect for the personalities of others."

QUOTATION: "The observable difference between success and failure is often extremely narrow. Whether in business, at the polls, a legal battle, or the hundred-yard dash, success may turn on ever so slight a superiority of intelligence, personality, training, or determination."

PHILOSOPHY: "While busied with the affairs of this world, do not lose sight of the eternal hills."

QUOTATION: "There is but a single vice: inertia! And but one virtue . . . enthusiasm!"

Directors

LESLIE G. MOELLER
Director of the School
of Journalism

Photography and stamp collecting are Prof. Moeller's major hobbies. Professional reading and the remodeling of his home keep him occupied throughout the year. Newspaper conventions and out-of-town lectures pertaining to news writing take time, too.

M. WILLARD LAMPE
Director of the School
of Religion

Dr. Lampe's summers are spent on the north shore of Lake Superior. He was once active in tennis and hiking. Throughout the year, he attends Educational board meetings in various parts of the country.

EARL E. HARPER
Director of the School
of Fine Arts

In the winter, both music and travel hold preference with Dr. Harper. Camping and fishing are his summer favorites.

LOREN HICKERSON
Director of the Alumni
Service

Mr. Hickerson is fond of gardening, is a sports enthusiast. He especially likes handball. Much of his time is spent writing and his work demands occasional traveling.

Not very surprising is Mr. Brechler's enthusiasm for all kinds of sports. Golf, handball, and fishing are his favorite summer activities.

PAUL BRECHLER
Director of Athletics

ROBERT R. SEARS
Director of Child Welfare

When he has research work to do, Dr. Sears leaves for his secluded New Hampshire cabin. He likes baseball, swimming, reading Egyptian history and an occasional review of his stamp collection.

H. CLAY HARSHBARGER
Director of the Summer
Session

RALPH E. ELLSWORTH
Director of Libraries

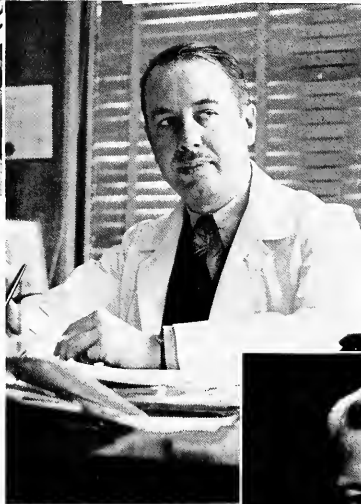

Gardening ranks first with Prof. Harshbarger. He likes to read, is an ardent basketball fan, and indulges in occasional automobile trips throughout the year.

Dr. Ellsworth does a good deal of traveling in the winter while giving lectures on library administration. The ever-popular trout fishing is popular with him, too.

HOMER R. DILL
Director of Museums

Fishing, telling fish stories, and boating are favorite activities which Prof. Dill enjoys especially at his Minnesota cabin.

GERHARD HARTMAN
Superintendent of University Hospitals

Traveling and lecturing on hospital maintenance and administration are Dr. Hartman's main activities. That summer vacation, however, he spends at his Montana ranch, skiing and fishing.

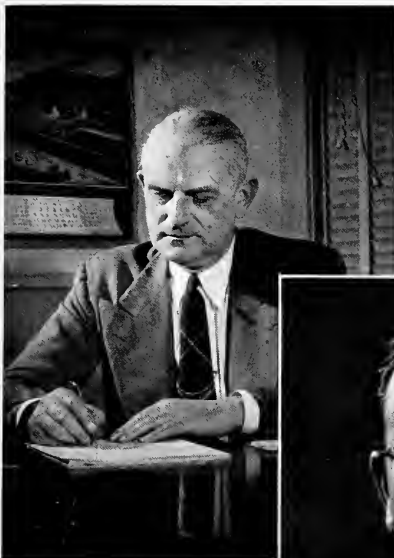

WILBUR R. MILLER
Director of
Psychopathic Hospital

Dr. Miller, too, spends much of his time traveling, lecturing and attending medical conventions. His vacation in the North includes fishing and swimming and he finds time to add to his collection of pipes.

FREDERICK M. POWNALL
Director of Publications

Working with the publications leaves Prof. Pownall little time in the winter. Fishing and occasional golf are his preferred summer activities.

WILLIAM D. CODER
Director of Veteran's
Service

Dr. Coder spends his summer vacation fishing in Wisconsin. During the fall he does a great deal of duck hunting in Eastern Iowa. He also enjoys golf and bridge, and collects theater programs.

C. WOODY THOMPSON
Director of the Bureau of Business Research

Another pipe collector, Mr. Thompson is also a great baseball fan; he even traveled South with a team last summer. He likes boating and hiking and travels a great deal. On the side, he buys wristwatches and attempts to judge their accuracy.

When summer rolls around, Dr. Goetsch likes to drive in the North Lake Region, plays an occasional game of golf. He is fond of detective stories and finds that they even provide some material with which to entertain his children.

WALTER R. GOETSCH

The Council on Student Affairs set a new record of action in reflecting student opinion and in broadening the scope of its program. The year's projects included the planning of student trips to out-of-town football games, the granting of a Thanksgiving vacation for next year, the instigation of student spouse cards for games, and a Christmas torchlight sing in front of Old Capitol. Council members have also carried on activities begun by their predecessors including the preparation of the Iowa handbook, the Campus Chest drive, work on the Panacea show and plans for an extended freshman orientation program.

Let's face it—living in a dormitory is not like living at home. Maybe to you it's merely a place to flop, a place to throw your books with a decent amount of assurance that they will be there next time you need them. And it may mean a hellish walk across a cold creek to get there! Those tin huts and trailers aren't paradise for two either. But look here—that roommate you razz the life out of is a pretty nice guy to have around when you stop to think of it. You come close to feeling comfortable there in your room with a picture of the big thrill on your desk and your personal trivia scattered about. Once in a while you may even forget yourself and say, "I guess I'll go back home," when you really mean you'll go back to the dorm.

Life at Currier was a good one. Telephones in every room, the soda fountain, many friendships and midnight gabfests all contributed to a full year. Currier girls and their escorts danced in the "Tinsel Twilight" of a December night. And lucky were those who had the honor of attending the traditional Sweetheart dance with a Currier lass. In December, Currier girls gathered together in the south dining room for a "Twismus Tweet," their "You-bring-the-snow-and-we'll-sleigh-you" party. Wednesday night exchange dinners with the men's dorms became an institution. Currier artists caused a buzz in local art circles when they exhibited their work at the spring open house. Donna Lee Iverson and Isobel Glick caused a buzz, too, as attendants to the Dolphin queen. And all of Currier applauded the good taste of the military department when Janet Gutz, Jean Dawson and Betty Dickinson were elected honorary Cadet Lieutenant Colonels and were presented at the Military Ball.

Six annexes and sixteen cottages are located within one block of Currier Hall. The annexes are Howard house, Currier house, Hutchinson house, East Lambert house and Currier annex. In spite of the confusion of names and places, life in the houses and cottages was much the same as life in Currier Hall proper. Separate informal parties were held throughout the year in each of the houses, but the girls also attended the big Currier parties. Each unit had a representative on the Currier Hall association council.

Sniffles and chills didn't have a chance at Westlawn. Student and graduate nurses—about 450 of them—lived there during the 1947-48 school year. A "big-little sister" orientation program introduced new nurses into the scheme of things. Small unit parties—tea dances in the "rec" room—helped the girls get acquainted. An informal all-girl Christmas party, and the annual semi-formal "Caps Caprice" were held in December. And without even a thought for germs, the Westlawn girls licked their pencils and marked down a spring semi-formal dance in their date books. Credit for planning all Westlawn activities goes to the Council of the Student Nurses' organization. This elected council governed the Westlawn population throughout the year.

Eastlawn residents proved that intelligent women can be good social bets, too. They couldn't miss with an informal buffet supper and dance in January, and a semi-formal dance later in the spring. The girls had time for monthly coffee hours and a Christmas "cozy" between books, dates, and campus activities. Doris Cuthbertson played in the orchestra. Janet Bliss and Kay Knight sang in the chorus. The Daily Iowan claimed the time of Connie Trevor, Phyll Smith and Mary Lou Moore, Iowan Society Editor. Marcia Kuyper and Cam Henderson broadcast over WSUI, and Cam was active in forensics. Joy Wilson swam with the Seals, and Jo Hubbell played hockey on the club team. J. ROBERT COTTER

Secretary-Treasurer and Adviser

Dean House, Fairchild House and Russell House are the three cooperative dormitories. To the sixty-five girls that lived in them, the dormitories were home—including washing the dishes and sweeping the floors. The Cooperative Dormitory Association council, composed of the president and proctor of each house and adviser J. Robert Cotter, met periodically to plan activities and discuss problems. Big cooperative dorm parties were an informal dance, "The Turkey Trot," and a semi-formal dinner-dance in the spring. Smaller parties and open houses were held throughout the year.

Enjoying a quiet evening at home are Russell House girls Margaret Habbinga, Peggy Megchelson, Lorena Vaghts, Helen Eaton, Dorothy Michaelsen, Yvette Wright, Elaine Willis.

Fairchild girls get together: Jane Wellborn, Jean Sprott, Pearl Baxter, Cynthia Johnson, Edith Warren, Zoe Broberg, Grace Rasmussen.

The forty-two girls living at Clinton Place found independent dormitory life informal. An open house in the fall and three dances—the annual “Last Frontier” dance in November, a February formal, and an informal May dance—headlined the social calendar. Clinton Place girls were active in chorus, speech, journalism, Y.W.C.A., and W.R.A. Katherine McNamara and Shirley Jean Cave were members of Theta Sigma Phi. Shirley Elman and Frankie Schaatz belonged to Gamma Alpha Chi. Jane Brisben became a member of Phi Gamma Nu and Alpha Lambda Delta, which also claimed Martha Dawson. A council of four officers and Mrs. S. Smith, adviser, planned all Clinton Place activities.

Town Women Council

Back Row: McFarland, Ashmead, Lager, Hertel, Danner, Ecklund

University women not living in dormitories or sororities dipped heartily into the social gravy bowl with the Independent Town Women's organization as chief contributor to the extra-curricular life of its members. Because these women lived in private homes throughout Iowa City, they combined mainly as a social group. They staged the "Anniversary Whirl," their biggest event, in February. They may have been a small group, but they weren't light on university honors. Pat Weir starred in several university plays, Catherine McFarland was a member of the student council, and Marilyn Carstens reigned as queen of the Delta Sigma Pi Christmas party.

A unique system of government again provided the eleven hundred Quadrangle men with a well planned calendar of activities. Disciplinary and judicial problems and social events were the responsibility of the thirty-six man Council, composed of elected representatives, and proctors appointed by the University. A new grill and barber shop, the music room and a re-decorated lounge offered Quad men additional convenience and comfort. The outdoor Harvest Moonlight Ball and the "Woodchopper's Ball", with Woody Herman's band, were two of the high points on the Quadrangle social schedule. Open House, chorus rehearsals, bridge games in the lounge, plus intramural sports tournaments and tea dances were functions that resulted in an active year for the residents of Quadrangle.

Hillcrest

Scholastic and social phases of Hillcrest activities combined to make 1947-48 an active year for residents. Mrs. Marie Swords and President George Kauffman guided Hillcrest through a successful administration. The Crest, dormitory newspaper, and the Hillcrest Chorus, served as two of the many group interests. The annual semi-formal winter dance was held December 5 at the Iowa Memorial Union, and Woody Herman's band made the occasion a well-remembered one for Hillcrest men. Exchange dinners with Currier Hall, a spring dance and unit parties during the year were other social events. The additions of a new recreation room and lounge and a cafeteria dining hall contributed to make Hillcrest even more comfortable for its residents.

South Quadrangle

As a preview of an active 1947-1948 year, South Quadrangle won the silver traveling trophy for dormitory competition in the homecoming decoration contest. The number of residents was increased to over two hundred and fifty by the addition of new cottages to the South Quad unit. Remodeling in the lounge and building improved facilities for the increased number of men. The Iowa River Room was the scene of the annual spring dance with Nat Williams and his band helping to make the evening a successful one. Stuart Moureau was elected president and helped to draft the first constitution for the South Quad student governing system. Mrs. Vern Spencer served capably as housemother again this year.

The studious residents of Law Commons again found an extensive study program brightened by the social and athletic activities of the year. Inter-dormitory tournaments in football, basketball and tennis were directed by Don Thompson and gave Commons residents an active sports program. The Annual Hallowe'en party, with Nat Williams' band, and exchange dinners with Currier Hall were two of the many social events that Commons sponsored. President John Thornell and house director Mrs. Ethel Miller guided Law Commons through a successful 1947-48 year. The Commons Law library and recreation bookshelves were a help and an attraction for residents who found themselves in need of good books. Bridge games in the comfortable Commons lounge were again an enjoyable tradition.

Getting acquainted with approximately 2,500 SUI men who are not pledged to, or housed in, fraternities or dormitories is one of the goals of the Town Men's association. Reorganized since the war, the group this year drew up a new constitution and presented it for adoption at a mass meeting held in October. SUI Town Men also visited the Town Men's group at Iowa State college to study its constitution and to confer with officers and advisors. Social activities were launched by exchange dinners with women's housing units, a Halloween party, a Christmas dance, and an after-the-game dance following the Indiana-Iowa game. The group also participated in an independent mixer, entertained Town Men from Ames in February and sponsored an informal spring dance. Town Man Bob Crumley was a judge in the Frivol Freshman beauty contest, and Robert Doty served as Student Council representative.

Panhellenic Council is composed of the presidents from the twelve social fraternities for women on the University of Iowa campus. Primarily interested in maintaining high social and academic standards among its members, Panhellenic sponsored such activities as the exchange open houses with men's fraternities, and the annual scholarship dinner. This year the scholarship cup was presented to Pi Phi sorority. The deferred rushing system was continued and the council, in addition, arranged for the house chairmen to carry out the biennial housing unit inspection followed by a report to the university. Panhellenic also arranged for the adoption of a war orphan.

The Iowa Men's Interfraternity Association is the governing body of the sixteen social fraternities on the University of Iowa campus. Through this group the fraternities maintain their relations with the University and other student organizations. During the year the council participated in many campus projects and sponsored a fall and spring dance for all fraternity men. Meetings are held every two weeks with Graham E. Marshall, manager of the Fraternity Business Service, as adviser. The president and alternate from each fraternity are Council members. Since Interfraternity Council was established in 1906 it has worked to raise the scholastic standing of fraternities and to further the cooperation of the Greeks and other University organizations.

Alpha Tau Omega

Led by Presidents Jim Schneider and Dick Chadima, and followed by their perennial Saint Bernard pledge, Ato II, the Alpha Tau's were among the leaders in almost every campus activity. Les Brooks was elected to ODK, senior men's honorary; Sigma Delta Chi, journalism honorary; and the Student Board of Publications, as well as serving as a newscaster for WSUI, publicity chairman for the Central Party Committee, Student Council and Union Board . . . Vice-president Dean Stichnoth did double duty on both Student Council and Interfraternity Council along with his position as Assistant Director of Sports Information Service . . . Norm Schrader was a news announcer on WSUI and secretary-treasurer of Sigma Delta Chi . . . Jim Schneider was secretary-treasurer of Interfraternity Council . . . Herb Doden saw service on a Union Board Committee, and Bob Charles was elected President of the Interfraternity Pledge Council. Bill Cummings, Bud Swab, Dick Dice, Bob Charles, Norm Ullestad and Paul Bender worked on HAWKEYE and Friol. Varsity teams claimed Jim Rasley in golf, Bob Reynolds and Chuck Schneider in football. Outstanding social events included the Homecoming Dinner Dance, "Club Tau" party and the Spring Sweetheart Dance.

Beta Theta Pi

Beta's again were among the leaders on the campus. President Bill Munsell served as the vice-president of the Iowa Union Board, and chairman of the Central Party Committee. The men representing Betas on the athletic field were Ray Carlson, guard, who captained two Iowa games and who also wore the black and gold of Iowa's wrestling squad; Will Shaw, Nile Kinnick scholarship holder; Bob Longley, Tom Pherson, Bid Barron, Grant Jennings, and Dave Meltvedt were doing their part for Iowa football; Bob Roseland, Don Roth, and John Swanson were out for track; Glen Gierke and Bill Martin were active Iowa golfers, while Roger Carlson and Jim Twogood were walking the links for the freshman squad. Socially, it was a full year for the Beta's beginning with a bang-up Barn Party; followed by the North Dubuque St. Dance, engineered by Rex Crayne; the annual Christmas Dinner Formal Dance; the capricious Bowery Brawl; and winding up the year with a Spring Formal and the Triad weekend.

Delta Chi started off the 1947-48 school year under the leadership of Dick Steckel. At the turn of the semester, Dick Lawrence, who transferred to Iowa from the Wisconsin chapter, took over the presidency. E. K. Jones, Bill Schumann, T. G. Van Camp belonged to Tailfeathers, while Steckel and Jack Fleming took an active part in university dramatic productions . . . Bob Hill was an Iowan reporter, Ed Smith a cheerleader . . . And it wasn't unusual to see Mark Putney wearing his University band uniform . . . Warren Smith was president of the Billy Mitchell squadron . . . John Ellis was awarded the first place gold Chicago Tribune medal for his proficiency in ROTC . . . Glenn Atkinson was the only member to leave at mid-year graduation. The chapter played host to ex-governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia who was a University lecture series speaker. The social calendar for the year included a tea honoring Delta Chi's new housemother, Mrs. Silver, followed by the annual winter formal, the traditional Turnabout party and other informal parties. Climax of the season was the annual spring formal.

By emphasizing scholastic concentration, the Delts once again upheld the high educational standards established by the fraternity 68 years ago on the Iowa campus . . . Bob Bunz was the first Delt of the year to accept the golden key of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary commerce fraternity . . . Jim Holbert was initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, freshman scholastic fraternity . . . the Delts were prominent in extra-curricular activities . . . Delt President Jordan Kern served as a member of the Interfraternity council as did Louis Nielsen, popular staff announcer for WSUI . . . Jazz critic Chuck Sanders was an editor on both the Iowan and WSUI news staffs . . . McClow, Suiter, Berg, and Gorman were on the Iowan staff . . . Lloyd Jackson and Bob Asprey served as Army and Marine Corps Recruiting Officers, respectively, for the Iowa City area . . . With many outstanding alumni returning for Homecoming, past and present athletes held the spotlight with attention focused on Bob Giegel, varsity wrestler, and probable Olympic wrestling team member . . . Freshman Bob Shepherd showed promise as a future track star . . . Iowa coeds will testify as to the success of the Delt social season . . . Under the direction of Kenny Lane, the numerous informal parties were highlighted by the Christmas and Spring formals, both traditional at Iowa.

Under the leadership of presidents Bob Phinney and Bud Flood, 1947-1948 proved to be a satisfying year for Phi Psi. Tom Vaughn's intramural proteges proved consistent by placing second in football, volleyball, swimming, golf, and by winning the heavyweight basketball championship. Varsity letterwinners in football, Jim Cozad and Dick Laster, were joined on the squad by Jim McKinstry . . . Bill Metz won a place on the tennis team and Bud Flood was a quarter-miler in track . . . Led by scholarship chairman Unk Huppenbauer, the chapter maintained a high grade point . . . Joe Cropper was elected to Pi Tau Sigma and Ted Foster was vice-president of the Iowa Collegiate Chamber of Commerce . . . George McBurney was familiar on campus as a WSUI newscaster, chairman of the University student speakers bureau, varsity debater, and vice-president of United World Federalists' SUI chapter . . . Also a U.W.F. officer was Bill Shuttleworth, who with Stu Charlton participated in forensic debate and discussion . . . Milt Hollinshead preached every Sunday in a Kalona church . . . Grad student Russ King taught math skills classes . . . Dick Pinney played sax in Larry Barrett's band . . . Jim Sangster, John Bunce, Don Fryauf, and Max Sowers were four of the twenty-two Nile Kinnick Scholarship winners . . . Bob Peterson was named to receive the annual Dorr award.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Gamma Nu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity opened the year 1947-1948 with a Homecoming Party. A high spot in Homecoming weekend was the initiation into Pi KA of several alumni members of Phi Kappa Rho which was once a local fraternity on Iowa campus and merged with the National fraternity to form a Pi Kappa Alpha chapter at Iowa. Lou King, Bob Phillips, and Bob Smith played football on the varsity team . . . Gamma Nu men were active in the band, on the Daily Iowan, in Pershing Rifles and on the University Dance committee. Intramural sports found the Pi KA's capturing first place in the bowling tournament . . . A "Beach Party" was held by the pledges in the actives' honor and a Thanksgiving party was given in November. "Stairway to the Stars," the fraternity winter formal dance, "Circus Party," given by the pledges in February, and the Spring Formal combined to make an active social calendar. "The Dream Girl of Pi KA," selected for the spring dance, was entered in national competition with all Pi Kappa Alpha chapters. Founders' Day, in March, was observed with a program for the chapter and its alumni.

With the initiation of twelve Iowa men at the fraternity's Northwestern chapter in November, Alpha Phi of Phi Kappa Sigma officially returned to the campus after an absense of nearly five years . . . House officers directing the reactivation were Dave Harris, Dale Erickson, Bob Stooker, Vince Peters, and Kurt Hauer . . . In February the Phi Kaps moved into their new home on North Dubuque and began to take a full part in campus activities . . . Bob Stooker and Forrest Rehberg were elected president and vice-president of the sophomore engineering class, and with Kurt Hauer share membership in Phi Eta Sigma . . . Bob Martin served as president of Alpha Phi Omega, honorary service fraternity . . . Vince Peters was vice-president of the Iowa Flying Club . . . Ray Tingleff was on the Union Board sub-committee . . . Phi Kap representatives in Iowa athletics included Dale Erickson, varsity baseball and Phi Epsilon Kappa, honorary physical education fraternity; Marv Stephens in swimming and the Dolphin Show; Roger Kolker on the freshman wrestling team, and Danny Rater in freshman football . . . Highlighting the social schedule was the Housewarming Party in early April.

Alpha Kappa Kappa

Greetings, civilization . . . Sweeping resume of an AKK year, directed by Dave Berger, assisted by Nielsen, Werner and Scholl. High-lite—AKK created senior day . . . Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Mayo clinic, as guest lecturer gave Iowa its first student-directed lectureship . . . Annual Founder's Day banquet saw many alums and staff members at AKK . . . Socially, Alpha Psi hit tops . . . Winter Dinner dance, pre and post Aesculapian Brawls, Pre-cordial panic, climaxed by annual formal Senior Dinner dance . . . New skin from Psi chapter, Minnesota now hangs in the Temple of Aesculapius, commemorating the gridiron victory of November 15 . . . AKK women's auxiliary with 23 AKK wives meeting monthly . . . Berens and Reed preside over freshman, sophomore medics . . . Proshek, Kohlhaas and Plows uphold AKK's interests in the Medical council . . . Proudly initiated 28 men, they having completed scholastic requirements . . . Had as our guest and advisor, Dr. Y. K. Wang, staff member . . . Not to be forgotten are those many informal Saturday night sessions improved by smiling mermaids, semi-monthly faculty lectures, and the inevitable bull sessions and midnight oil.

Nu Sigma Nu

Through the efforts of President Erling Larson, Steward Joe Schupp and faculty advisor Dr. E. W. Sheldrup the Nu Sigma Nu house was entirely renovated and presented a "like-new" appearance when the members arrived in the fall. Led by scholarship chairman Gordon Mindrum, who topped his freshman class, the Nu Sigs, like all medical students, gave first attention to scholarship . . . They had plenty of good times on the side, however . . . The fabulous Homecoming party, the Winter Formal, and Student-Faculty Stag headlined the first part of the year while the Aesculapian Frolic was one of the eagerly awaited later events . . . Dick Opfell was elected to membership on the Medical Student Council . . . Nu Sig athletic teams were active in basketball and football . . . Nu Sigma Nu was saddened by the death of Dr. Ewen M. MacEwen, Dean of the Medical College and a member of the Chapter's alumni board. In his memory an annual award was established for the senior medic having the best four-year record. This is the second Nu Sig sponsored award. The first was the Henry J. Prentis Memorial award announced earlier.

The Phi Beta's entered a new era in 1947-48 of accomplishments for scholasticism, joviality, and social graces. The members devoted their efforts toward academic accomplishments, but were still able to appreciate social functions, athletics and concerts as has been the tradition throughout forty-three years of activity. This year's memorable events included after-dinner talks by members of the faculty, the Christmas formal, senior banquet, and spring costume party. The fraternity began an organization for the wives of the married members. This group sponsored social evenings of bridge and many of the house parties. Members of the fraternity that were active on the medical student council were Richard Day, Peter Goplerud, Ernie Zmolek, Darl Vander Ploeg, John Tyrrell, Joseph Trotzgi, and Conrad Anderson . . . Bill Grimmer was on Union Board and was elected archon of the fraternity.

This has been a busy year for Phi Chi. Their social whirl included smokers and stag parties, special married couple get-togethers, dances, an Aesculapian banquet, and picnics at Lake Macbride . . . Phi Chi parties have been livened with returned alumni: Dr. "Mike" Mirack, who is here for a residency, led the singing . . . Dr. Ed Gann joined the staff at Oakdale . . . Phi Chi family life did not slip either . . . One of our members took his nuptial vows while three seniors passed out cigars . . . In scholastic achievements, Dick Antes was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and Campbell, Spohnheimer and Williams are honorary Alpha Omega Alphas this year . . . President Malcolm Campbell represented the local chapter at the 30th Phi Chi Grand National convention held in Atlanta, Georgia, during Christmas vacation . . . This spring the Grand Secretary visited the Phi Chis at Iowa . . . Mu Gamma welcomed the Phi Chi fifth department head, Dr. N. A. Womack, appointed chief of surgery here.

Under presidents Jim Maharry and Cal Johnson, Phi Rho Sigma had an active year socially and scholastically . . . Warren Moore was elected to Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical fraternity, and was awarded Baldrige-Beye Memorial Award by the Iowa State Medical Society . . . It was announced that Don Wilkins, who graduated last spring, had achieved highest national honors in pathology in the national medical examinations . . . Representing the fraternity on the medical student council were Everett Nitzke, Roy Stratton, and Norm Schacht . . . Jim Maharry, Cal Johnson, Ed Jacobs, Dick Eckberg, Bob Sautter, and Dick Wilson were announced Advanced R.O.T.C. officers at the Military Ball . . . After-dinner smokers gave Phi Rhos a chance to meet faculty members and local physicians informally . . . An outstanding event on the social calendar was the Christmas Formal at the chapter house . . . The spring Water Front Party was one of the several occasions on which Phi Rho as host to the other medical fraternities maintained its reputation for giving the "typical" medical party.

Delta Sigma Delta

Delta Sigma Delta bade farewell to nine seniors. Their names had been prominent in campus activities and in the classrooms of the College of Dentistry. Special tribute to Frank Dailey elected to Omicron Kappa Upsilon, honorary national dental fraternity; to Herb Wilkinson, All-American basketball star and "most eligible bachelor"; to Brownie Otopolick, president of the Associated Students of Dentistry; to Robert Getman, past Grand Master of Delta Sigma Delta; and to Paul Greiwe, letterman in baseball. Present Grand Master Robert Knarr earned recognition in golf; and Sophomore Clayton Wilkinson, basketball star, coached Delta Sigma Delta intramural athletic teams to first place in volleyball and basketball, and to second place in football. Elected to office in '48 were Robert Knarr, Grand Master; Norman Rugtiv, Worthy Grand Master; Scribe, James Cross; Treasurer, Don Hult; Historian, John Frevert; Tyler, Herm Holland; Senior Page, Bruce Hollingsworth; Junior Page, William Shortell. Twenty-five freshmen were pledged into the fraternity of Delta Sigma Delta. Delta Sigma Delta was particularly grateful to its alumni for their lively interest, special clinics, and support in making the year a great success.

Psi Omega was founded at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery on June 8, 1892, and now has thirty-two active chapters throughout the United States. Dr. R. H. Volland was instrumental in bringing the Gamma Mu Chapter to the Iowa campus in 1906. Its primary objective was to "cultivate the social qualities of its members and exert an untiring influence for the advancement of the dental profession in methods of teaching, of practice, and jurisprudence." Psi Omega social activities were highlighted by the annual Christmas Party during which "personality gifts" were presented to the faculty and personnel of the dental school . . . The group was active in intramural sports, winning the 1947 all-university touch football championship . . . The Psi O's pooled their ideas and resources during homecoming week and produced a decoration which was judged second best in the fraternity class . . . The Psi Omega Wives Club had its inception during the past year and had thirty-five active members composed of pledges, active, and graduate wives.

Danny always seemed like a pretty normal guy to you. You often wondered why he decided to be a fine arts major. No money in it—at least not 'til you're dead, you said to yourself. Others you'd known too: D. A. majors—dramatic arts. How about them, were they crazy? You guessed they weren't—just impractical. Matter of fact, you wished you had time to take a couple of art courses, too. But you've got to work fast; this is the time to be out hittin' for a job. You'd heard it took a terrific amount of your time for extra frills like working for the paper or writing a story for Friol. You decided that you'd have to stick to your schedule. Still, you couldn't help envying them a little.

The Daily Iowan was 80 years old this year, one of the oldest newspapers in Iowa. Its approach to good newspapering, however, retained the flavor of youth. For, as always, the Iowan was manned by students. This year the Iowan's leadership in an accuracy testing method, its experimentation with front page makeup, and its vigorous editorial stand were noted far and wide in most Iowa dailies, many Iowa weeklies and a host of magazines, including Time and the Saturday Review of Literature. Editor R. Bruce Hughes received a $1,000 award from a national organization for his editorials on the beating of a Rabbi in Iowa City. Other editorials gained state-wide and national attention. All was not easy sailing, for the Iowan had a habit of looking "sacred cows" straight in the eyes. It had kind words and harsh—sometimes praising, sometimes criticizing. So it carried on the 80-year tradition of being vigorously independent. And the university administration proved this year, as before, that it believes in such an independent newspaper. The only student newspaper in the U. S. with both Associated Press leased wire service and Wirephoto, the Iowan is one of two accorded professional standing for its competence in presenting campus, city, national and international news.

Putting out a yearbook is a sometimes grim, always exciting business as any of the 1948 HAWKEYE staff could testify. For the first time, HAWKEYE senior pictures were taken by special arrangement with the University photographer and with the use of the new Strobel lights. And through a busy, turbulent year, HAWKEYE sought to reflect life at the University of Iowa.

As the governing body of Student Publications, Inc., the Student Board of Publications decides the general policy of The Daily Iowan newspaper, HAWKEYE yearbook and Frivol magazine. The board appoints the editors of these three publications, approves their staffs, and passes on the budgets. Organized in 1924, the board consists of nine members, four faculty who are appointed by the president of the university. The other five members are students, three of whom come up each year for campus-wide elections. The two receiving the highest number of votes serve for two years and the third for one year. Oldest of the three publications is The Daily Iowan, which dates back through its predecessor, The University Reporter, to 1868. The HAWKEYE was first published for the class of 1892 and Frivol came into being in 1919.

Whether you're relaxing while Jerry Feneger spins the platters on "Rhythm Rambles" or sweating it out as Bob Brooks brings you a play-by-play description of a Hawkeye team in action, your dial is set at 910, university of Iowa's station WSUI. Station WSUI is the result of an experiment begun here in 1911. In 1919 it was the first broadcasting transmitter west of the Mississippi and in 1925 it received its present call letters. This year the experiment was developed further by the addition of FM station KSUI, first educational FM station in Iowa. New programs included in the 14-hour, six-day broadcasting week are "Fiction Parade", "Gilbert and Sullivan Playhouse" and "Know Your University." This year WSUI recognition pins were awarded to outstanding students in the radio organization.

Forensics Association

All students participating in any Forensics activity are members of the Forensic Association. This year, Iowa sponsored two intercollegiate Forensic conferences on post-war problems. Thirty colleges and universities participated in debate, discussion, extemporaneous speaking, original oratory, after-dinner speaking and a model congress. In addition to six intercollegiate home-and-home debates, Iowa women won first for the fourth consecutive time and the men won second place in the Western Conference League debate tournament at Purdue in April. During the year, some 150 students participated in Forensics.

Iowa Alpha chapter of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debate, discussion and oratory fraternity, this year launched a program designed to encourage outstanding high school speakers to enroll at the University of Iowa. High school students were invited to debates here and were contacted personally by members of Delta Sigma Rho. Delta Sigma Rho sponsored the annual International Debate which was this year with Oxford University. This year the question was "Resolved: that the danger of war can best be averted by an all-purpose Anglo-American alliance." The purpose of Delta Sigma Rho is to encourage effective public speaking by giving recognition to outstanding speakers. Only juniors, seniors and graduate students are eligible for membership. Iowa Alpha chapter was founded in 1906.

University Orchestra

PHILIP G. CLAPP
Director

The University Symphony Orchestra during 1947-1948 presented its usual series of six symphony concerts under the direction of Professor Philip Greeley Clapp. The orchestra also accompanied the University Chorus in two oratorios, presented symphony concerts at three other Iowa colleges, and played at the mid-year Commencement in the Iowa Union. The orchestra personnel this year included 15 faculty members and 100 students. While naturally a majority of the faculty and student personnel either taught or studied in the music department, the organization was nevertheless an all-University and community group with faculty and students of other departments well represented. The work of the Symphony Orchestra was supplemented by that of the Chamber Orchestra, an organization of 30 symphony orchestra members which served as a laboratory for orchestral compositions and arrangements by advanced students, and provided opportunities in practice-conducting for qualified students.

University Chorus

The 165 members of University Chorus, under the direction of Prof. Herald Stark, presented four concerts during the year. The series began in November with a part-song concert. The chorus, together with University Orchestra, presented Bach's Christmas Oratorio in December, Professor Stark conducting. heralding Easter, the chorus presented Mendelssohn's "Elija" for a university audience. A Spring concert of part-songs, including the singing of Brahms' Liebeslieder waltzes, completed the season. Chorus accompanists were John Simons and Nadine Knowlton. Charles Davis was assistant director.

University Band

CHARLES B. RICHTER
Director

The University Band personnel became all-men again this year for the first time since before the war. Under the direction of C. B. Richter, the bands made innumerable public appearances. The football band performed for all home games and traveled to South Bend, Ind., for the Iowa-Notre Dame game. The Varsity band furnished music for all home basketball games while this Spring the 60 members of the concert band toured 11 Iowa towns giving 13 concerts. In the spring, gold' service award keys were presented to concert band members with six semesters of band membership and members of varsity band with eight semesters. Assistant band director was A. L. Oelsen.

Someone happened along while the lights were out and, in the manner of most unwelcome guests, left his mark—The Bat. Mary Roberts Rinehart's adaptation for the stage of her own early mystery story was the first production of the season. It was directed by Marian Galloway.

Just about at this part of the play everyone is thinking everyone else is "The Bat." On stage at the moment are a maid, a wealthy, eccentric dowager, her lovely niece, a lawyer, a doctor, an oriental houseboy, a disguised gardener and someone who has been either shot or hit in the head with a brick. Who knows? Any one of them might be "The Bat."

By act III the play has progressed from the ground floor to the attic but, as yet, everyone is still wondering who the Bat can be. They thought they'd find him behind the fireplace but all that was there was an empty safe. He's really in the barrel at the right, but, fortunately, no one on stage realizes this

Paul Davee, as a man of rigid Bostonian distinction, reacts with discomfort at being discovered by a servant with not one, but two glasses of something that looks suspiciously alcoholic in his hands. The servant, an ideal of his sort, reacts not at all. On the bookshelf to the rear are copies of both Freud and Emerson, co-stars who provide the conflict in the play.

Amidst the heavy Victorian splendor that was turn-of-the-century Boston, a small segment of the Apley clan painfully scrutinize Jack Fleming, Apley's suitor. He's a Yale man, you know. Not Harvard—but Yale.

By the light of the Apley's private possession, the sun, George rereads one of his own minor classics in which he has solved the pressing problem of what to do with the remains of a member of the clan of dubious social background who has committed the unpardonable affront of getting herself buried in the Apley cemetery plot. Cecelia Armstrong as Mrs. Apley listens patiently but wishes he'd forget the whole thing.

This is the small, not very happy, family created for the theater by Tennessee Williams in his "The Glass Menagerie." Tom, the lonely everyman seeking freedom (Don Carr); Amanda, the desperate mother searching security in an impossible present and an appealing but dead past (Ruth Morgan); Laura, the terrifyingly shy sister, needing affection but not knowing how to encourage it (Ann Clark), and—in the picture on the rear wall—the father, who found his freedom long before the first act curtain.

Tom examines one piece of the crystal collection of animals which gives the play its title and Laura her only happiness in life. The sensitive story of unhappy people won its author the Critic's Circle award. The local production won congratulations for everyone concerned. Particularly Charles Gaupp who directed the play and designed its setting.

The men and women behind the men and women on stage—the unheralded many supporting the applauded few. The stage crew realized Gaupp's idea of what is a miserable, stuffy, over-crowded apartment opening on a St. Louis alley; the prompter who reminded the performers of what Williams wrote; the lighting crew who provided a tone of dream-like unreality to the proceedings and saw that papa's picture lighted up.

When the Yuletide rolled around, the drama department took advantage of the season to present Paul Claudel's miracle-mystery play, "The Tidings Brought to Mary." In this scene, Violaine (Patricia Weir) takes leave of her leperous lover (Henry G. Lee) while her sister (Anne Reed) eavesdrops and neatly misinterprets the situation.

It's Christmas and Violaine, now a leper herself, wanders from her cave in search of a crust of bread. A group of revellers blaspheme the season of peace on earth and goodwill to man to taunt the lady who has been cursed by an innocent kiss. A little later, as a reward for her unjust suffering, Violaine is granted the power to restore life to her sister's child, thus accomplishing Claudel's miracle.

In the third act, the tragedy reaches a final climax with the death of Violaine, who, blinded by her disease, has fallen into a sand pit. Here, she takes final parting from the two men, Jacques (Henry G. Lee) and Pierre (Theodore Paul), whose love was neither strong nor unselfish enough to save her.

G. B. Shaw's personification of a satirical and biblical Caspar Milquetoast, Androcles (Tom Gregory), gives out with a few persuasive words on how to win over a friendly populace and influence lions to Caesar (Peter Leavy). The very Shavian lion with the dust mop mane is Ray Hill. Androcles, who loves all animals both human and quadruped, is trying to strike up a bond of friendship between his two buddies. But the more discriminating lion doesn't like anyone but Androcles. And the caste-conscious Caesar thinks lions are all right but—only in their place.

Here before A. S. Gillette's roaring, old Roman arena, Shaw's motley crew of patricians and plebians, Christians and cast members gaze in unbelieving admiration upon Caesar's newly revealed prowess as a lion tamer. The only one convinced is Androcles, who reasoned the lion into submission in the first place. The bored lion only reflects, "What fools these mortals be."

A modern spirit, student achievement and outstanding professors have won recognition throughout the nation for the University of Iowa's art department. This year, 45,664 Iowans came from all over the state to view the Old Masters exhibition of 30 paintings. Loaned to the university by the Metropolitan museum, the paintings were on exhibit at the art building during January, February and March. The annual art conference was held in April and included such guest speakers as Philip Evergood, American artist. An event in which students organized and sponsored their own professionally juried show was the Art Salon which opened in April. Entries of their work were made by the students and juried by outside judges.

COLONEL WILLIAM W. JENNA

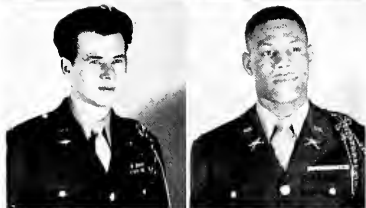

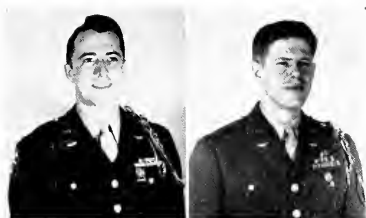

Keeping in step with a stumbling world was the task of ROTC at the State University of Iowa. To accomplish this, the military education curriculum was modernized and the training staff increased. The enrollment more than doubled that of the previous year. ROTC's job was to produce junior officers for a strong Officers' Reserve corps. Direct commissions in the regular army were offered to Honor graduates. At the Military Ball, Morris J. Ward was commissioned Cadet Colonel, regimental commander. Commissions as Cadet Lieutenant Colonels were awarded to William Day, regimental executive officer; Benjamin Davis, first battalion commander; Sidney Guthrie, second battalion commander; and Phillip Moorhead, third battalion commander.

The Billy Mitchell Squadron, named in honor of the pioneer air tactician, carries on the standard of the Army Air Force. The group is composed of cadet officers and superior sophomore students from the Air Force unit of the ROTC. New members are indoctrinated into the history and practices of the air forces. The purpose of the squadron is to further and uphold the high standards and ideals set by General Billy Mitchell.

Pontoniers

The red-trousered Pontoniers concentrated on refilling their war-depleted ranks this year. The honorary Engineer ROTC unit was disbanded during the war. The tradition upon which the unit is based was set by 400 Pontoniers in Napoleon's army who died because they stuck to their job of building two bridges across an ice-filled river. Iowa Pontonier activities before the war included an SUI-Iowa State meet, drill competition with the Pershing Rifles for possession of the "Little Brown Jug," Federal Inspection, Homecoming rallies, and Armistice Day parades. The Pontoniers were under the command of Cadet Capt. Phil Moorhead. Second-in-command was Cadet 1st Lt. Harlan Bjork.

Scottish Highlanders

Dressed in kilts of Royal Stewart and Hunting Stewart tartan, Iowa's Scottish Highlanders marched through their tenth year as one of SUI's most colorful activities. The skirl of bagpipes and the beat of drums have resounded from New York to San Francisco. The largest Scottish bagpipe band in the world and the only all-bagpipe band sponsored by an American university, the Highlanders have travelled 30,000 miles through 23 states and Canada, and have drilled before 2,500,000 people since they were organized. They began in 1937 as a male unit, but they were reorganized in 1943 as an all-girl corps. The Highlanders are instructed and directed by Pipe Major William L. Adamson.

They tell us that there was once a world's champion runner who got sick after every race. He would win a race, then with the sound of the cheering crowd still in his ear he would go off to a secluded spot and be sick. It happened every time, but still he was a champion. You have known the thrill of the game and have cheered with the crowd. You have observed the scores and commented appropriately on them. But did you notice the athlete trying to conceal his limp as he left the field? Did you see the injured player begging to be put back into the game? Have you witnessed the exhausted athlete, his sweaty body aching for a shower?

"Rah, Yeah Iowa!" The enthusiasm and spirit of the squad of twelve cheerleaders was echoed by SUI students as they backed their teams in victory and defeat. This year's cheering squad was one of the largest in the university's history. Under Captain Jack Moore the cheerleaders distinguished themselves with their fine formations and tumbling stunts during time-out periods. During the football season, they traveled with the team to out-of-town games. And all winter they boosted a near-champion basketball team. With the cheerleaders, "Iowa Fights!"

Tailfeathers is that white-sweatered group of people that falls all over itself at every athletic event competing with the team for attention. This group, also known as the pep club, has assumed the job of boosting school spirit at most of Iowa's games. One of the pep club's outstanding achievements during its two years' existence was the sale of 32,000 Homecoming badges last fall. Besides providing entertainment before football games and during halftime at basketball contests, the Tailfeathers also constitute an organized cheering section. This year the pep clubbers honored and presented an award to former Iowa athlete Herb Wilkinson as "the student who has done the most to further Iowa athletics."

To determine the policies of the Hawkeyes in Big Nine Conference competition is the purpose of the Iowa Athletic Board of Control. The Board controls the athletic budget, puts its stamp of approval on all athletic schedules and radio broadcasts, and establishes the price of tickets. Paul Blommers is president of the Board. Paul Brechler, who last July replaced E. G. Schroeder as athletic director, acts as executive for the Board and carries out its decisions. A graduate of Drake University, former business manager of Iowa University, and long connected with the Iowa athletic scene, Mr. Brechler has proven himself highly capable of handling the difficult duties which accompany his position. Rollie Williams served as assistant director of athletics during the 1947-1948 sports year and Frank Havlicek was business manager.

The 1947 season was a difficult one for Coaches Eddie Anderson, Frank Carideo, and Jack Meagher. Only the Homecoming victory over Indiana and the defeat of Minnesota on Dad's Day highlighted an otherwise dreary season. The night before the Minnesota game, Coach Anderson tendered his resignation to the Athletic Board of Control. However, several days later the board refused the resignation and gave Coach Eddie a vote of confidence. The Hawks finished the season with three wins, five losses and one tie.

Iowa's Hawkeyes started their 1947 football season in a blaze of glory as they downed North Dakota, 59 to 0. The largest opening crowd in the history of the Iowa stadium, 31,050, saw the Hawks use mostly second, third, and fourth stringers.

The 90 degree heat of this September 20 seemed to make no difference as Iowa superiority was shown in sheer line power and a bright new passing attack. The lopsided score was doubly indicative of the power of the whole Hawkeye squad that Saturday; first of the versatile offense which produced nine touchdowns, and secondly of a stalwart defense which allowed the Bison to invade Iowa territory only once all afternoon. If any stars of the game are to be cited, one might choose Bob Smith who scored two touchdowns and Johnny Estes who manufactured three others. A newcomer to the ranks, Al DiMarco, added aerial perspective in completing seven of 10 passes. But ahead of the Hawkeyes lay one of the toughest grid schedules in the country, including the two 1947 Rose Bowl teams and later the grueling grind of four consecutive road trips.

Doctor Eddie Anderson and his Hawkeyes, hoping for a successful season, met their first major foe, U. C. L. A., in Los Angeles, California, and had their dreams smashed with a terrific second half surge by the Bruins which ended in a 22-7 score. Until the fateful last half, the Hawks had been holding their own against the powerful Pacific coast team. Emlen Tunnell's brilliant run in the last minute of the first half gave Iowa a 7-0 lead. But the Bruins came back strong and rolled up 22 points in the 90-degree heat.

Iowa's football team opened its 1947 conference schedule by losing to a strong Illinois squad, 35 to 12. Over 52,000 spectators saw the 1946 Rose Bowl champions move into an early lead by turning a recovered fumble and a blocked kick into touchdowns. Ron Headington plunged over the line in the second quarter for Iowa's first touchdown. Illinois scored again and the visiting Illini left the field at halftime with a 21 to 6 lead. Perry Moss and Russ Steger helped Illinois increase their lead by scoring fourteen points in the last half while holding Iowa to only six points. Ron Headington and Al DiMarco provided the main punch for the team as the Hawkeyes absorbed their second setback of the season.

Ohio State . . . . . 13

The Ohio State game followed two losses and one win for the Iowa squad and the Hawks were out to even things up. But a fighting Buckeye eleven roared back in the final quarter for 13 points and a tie. The Hawks completely controlled the ball game for the first three periods, scoring twice while the Buckeyes passed the Iowa 40-yard marker only once. The Iowa tallies were scored on short passes into the end zone by Al DiMarco, one to Bob Smith and the other to Herb Shoener. On both scores the ball was taken deep into Ohio territory by the ground gainers, Bob Smith and Emlen Tunnell. Bob Smith's sensational running game gave him an average of 5.2 yards in 17 attempts and his punts averaged 40 yards. Under the captaincy of Herb and Hal Shoener the Hawks played well until the last quarter when a break set up an Ohio score. From then on it was an inspired Buckeye team that tied up the score and the game.

Defensively, the Hawks were easily the best on the field. Hal Shoener, Jim Shoaf, Dick Woodward, and Ron Headington were standouts and in the last trying quarter, Dick Laster defended the Iowa goal almost single-handed.

ana football machine, 27-14. Iowa played with a pent-up fury partly due to two successive beatings at the hands of U. C. L. A. and Illinois. With a great line in front of him, Al DiMarco had little trouble finding his receivers, and completed ten of fourteen attempted passes. Em Tunnell snagged six of these heaves, and as a result scored three touchdowns and set up the fourth. Therein lies the story of the game. Doctor Eddie Anderson and his gridiron crew showed the dopesters that there was nothing fluky about their pre-season rating.

Saturday, October 25, meant invasion of the perennial football stronghold of the country—South Bend and the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. To meet the number one team of the nation came the Hawkeyes, Notre Dame's chief nemesis. Except for a few momentary lapses or bad breaks, the Irish victory of 21 to 0 might have been different. Sports writers and Frank Leahy himself agreed that the Irish played their top game to date before an overflow crowd of 56,000. Even with Notre Dame evening the series at three games apiece, it remained for Iowa's Emlen Tunnell to provide the most outstanding play of the day as he galloped 65 yards only to be caught from behind before crossing the last white marker. It was the line play of the Hawkeyes which was especially notable, particularly that of a pair of twin ends, Herb and Hal Shoener, whom the Irish found all too often in their backfield. The Hawkeyes had lost, but they could hold their heads high in defeat.

Purdue Wins

The University of Iowa football squad, after holding a powerful Notre Dame to a score of 21 to 0, traveled to Lafayette, Indiana, only to succumb to Purdue by the same score of 21 to 0. Harry Szulborski was the star Boilermaker and the entire Purdue team was set upon proving that they rated their place among the top ten teams in the United States. Highlights of the game for Iowa centered on Duke Curran's interception of a pass which he returned for almost sixty yards, only to be stopped by the Purdue safety man. After a scoreless first quarter, Purdue rolled across the line in each of the succeeding quarters.

Wisconsin Defeats Iowa

Wisconsin added another page to Iowa's list of 1947 gridiron defeats by smothering the Hawks, 46-14, before the Badgers' homecoming crowd of 45,000. The cold November weather had little effect on the swift Wisconsin backs as they darted past the Hawks. "Jug" Girard highlighted the Badger play with touchdown runs of 85 and 65 yards in the first half. The touchdown parade continued unabated during the last half. The Hawks' Johnny Estes was the outstanding Iowan on the field. His passes ignited a first quarter surge which brought Iowa its first touchdown.

Ross Anderson

Using only fifteen men, Iowa's football team climaxed an otherwise rather dismal season by dumping the highly-favored Gophers from Minnesota, 13-7. Fifty thousand Dad's Day spectators saw Iowa's line fight off four Minnesota drives in the first half, only one of which resulted in a Gopher score. Early in the second half, led by Al DiMarco's passing, the Hawks tied the game at 7-7, and soon thereafter scored again to defeat the visitors. It was the determined Iowa line led by Bill Kay, Jim Shoaf, and Ross Anderson that insured this victory as time and again they out-charged and out-fought the Gopher forward wall. With Hawk backs DiMarco, Smith, and Headington carrying the offensive brunt, and Lou King and John Estes playing strong defensive ball, this victory was truly a result of inspired team play.

Jack Spencer and Murray Wier, guard and forward respectively, finished their collegiate basketball careers this year in a style that Iowa basketball fans will probably never forget. Jack will be remembered for his consistent, "heads up" ball handling and his great play-making ability. Murray, the greatest scorer in Iowa history, was made famous by his uncanny shots from all over the court.

Iowa's All-American

The scoring sparkplug of the Iowa team throughout the year was the little giant from Muscatine, Murray Wier. Wier established two Big Nine individual records and helped Iowa set two new team records. His teammates voted him the most valuable player for the second year and later he was selected as the Big Nine's most valuable player. Wier was an unanimous choice for all-Big Nine forward and placed on several All-American teams including the Associated Press first team. Climax of honors came in April, however, when Muscatine, his home town, sponsored a Murray Wier day with all the trimmings.

LEONARD METCALFE

"Metcalfe ineligible"—Those words stunned Hawkeye fans all over the state early in February. "Red," a junior from Kentucky, was one of the smoothest centers seen at Iowa in a long time. Though he was six feet, four, he played against opponents ranging from 6' 6" to 6' 9". "Red" not only handled rebounds, he also managed to dunk in over 13 points per game.

December 1, Iowa began its 1947-48 basketball season with an 82-43 win over little Carleton College, but the spectators came away shaking their heads. Iowa, they said, wouldn't win two conference games. The team, however, proceeded to win the next five non-conference games all in a row. "Iowa is a second division team this year," insisted the dopesters. Came the conference games, and Iowa won successive victories over Ohio State and Purdue but lost a heartbreaker to Wisconsin. They bounced back to defeat Indiana, then tasted defeat at the hands of Jim McIntyre and the Golden Gophers. Fans were packing the Iowa Fieldhouse by this time. With the end of the semester came the news of Metcalfe's ineligibility, and again Iowa's hopes fell. But the team had plenty of spirit and hustle and defeated Northwestern, Purdue, and Illinois only to jeopardize their championship chance by a loss to Indiana. With the season fast drawing to a close, the Hawkeyes rallied to defeat Wisconsin and Minnesota, but fell before Michigan in a battle for the Big Nine title.

BOB SCHULZ

Bob Schulz, a sophomore from Davenport, started every game this year and was one of the best guards in the Big Nine. A good rebounder, he scored consistently, his set shots catching opposing teams off guard.

DON HAYS

"Maggie," a junior from Ft. Dodge, was another member of the starting five who proved himself with his spirit and all-around floor play. His set shots constantly worried opposing teams and forced the defense out where Iowa could set up plays.

This was a good year for Don Hays, sophomore from Des Moines, as well as the Iowa basketball team. Don, who stands 6' 5", showed rapid improvement in the center spot. As an understudy to Rog Finley, Don scored consistently and did a good job of rebounding. When Metcalfe was ruled ineligible at mid-semester the job of handling the center position fell largely to Finley and Hays.

FLOYD MAGNUSSON

BOB VOLLERS

Bob Vollers, a sophomore from Keokuk, played his first year at Iowa and showed promise of becoming a great basketball player. His excellent rebounding ability was a distinct asset to the team as he repeatedly cleared the backboard against taller and more experienced players.

"Thin Man" Jack Spencer, a senior from Davenport, captained the Iowa team throughout the year. A near-perfect guard, Jack led the team through an unexpectedly glorious season. Field general par excellence as well as a play maker, Jack handled the team masterfully. His rebounding ability and general floor play were important factors in Iowa's pennant march in the late part of the season.

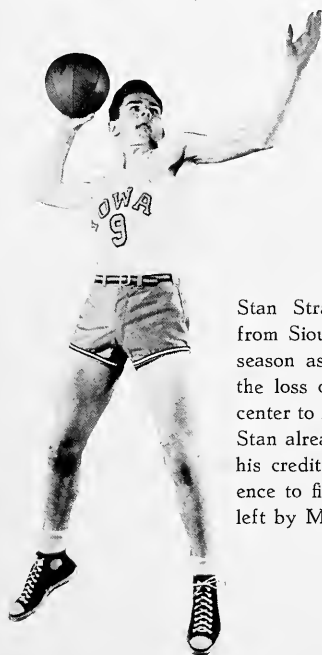

JACK SPENCER

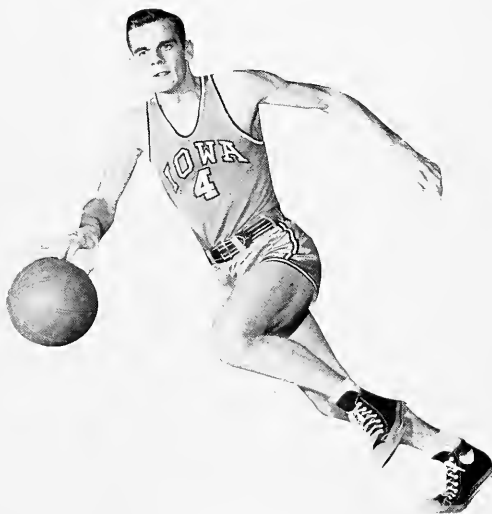

ROGER FINLEY

Roger Finley took over the center slot when Metcalfe became ineligible. The 6' 5" sophomore from Franklin, Minnesota, had a lot to live up to. He not only did the job, but showed improvement throughout the year.

STANLEY STRAATSMAN

Stan Straatsma, a sophomore from Sioux Center, started the season as a forward, but with the loss of Metcalfe moved to center to help Finley and Hays. Stan already had two letters to his credit and used his experience to fill the rebounding gap left by Metcalfe.

CHARLIE MASON

Another little fellow from Muscatine who proved that it's quality not quantity when it comes to basketball was Charlie Mason, a junior. No one would rather speed up the game to a race-horse pace than Charlie who literally ran opponents off their feet.

Freshman Basketball

A freshman squad of around fifty men worked out all winter in the hopes of playing on next year's varsity basketball team. On the squad were such all-state players from last year as Dick Riecks from Danbury and Fred Ruck who led Davenport to the state championship in 1947. Vincent Harsha coached the freshman squad.

OTTO VOGEL

This year, Coach Otto Vogel led his team in what promised to be the best diamond season in years. Iowa baseball, after several poor seasons, definitely came to the fore under Coach Vogel's leadership. Coach Vogel took the team south after several weeks of indoor practice with hopes of ironing out some of the kinks before the Big Nine season began. The scoreboard in the early part of the season indicated that the team was shaping up well. The Hawks opened the season by splitting a pair with Louisiana Tech followed by a split pair with Arkansas Teachers. Arkansas State fell before the Hawks as did Washington U. Iowa blanked Luther twice, split a pair with a good Bradley team. DiMarco and Bruner were slated to carry the brunt of the pitching with Ebner behind the plate. Smith, Ericson, and Tedore played the backfield while Everett, Dittmer, Kafer and McCarty handled the infield.

Swimming

Iowa swimmers, under the able leadership of coach David Armbruster, this year proved themselves no easy foe for any team. Led by Captain Wally Ris, who holds five national AAU titles and the U. S. record for the 100-meter dash, the tankmen opened the season with a 58 to 26 victory over the Minnesota Gophers. Next came a dual meet with Ohio State which may have been the best meet of its kind in the United States this year. The efforts of Wally Ris and the great 400-yard free style relay team however were not enough to overcome Ohio State's overall team strength and the final score was Ohio State 48, Iowa 36. The following week Iowa lost its second dual meet of the season to Michigan's championship team. However, the Hawk tankers bounced back to defeat Purdue, Illinois, and Wisconsin in successive meets. Iowa's hopes were built around Wally Ris in the 100-yard free style, and the 400-yard free style relay team of Kenny Marsh, Duane Draves, Ervin Straub, and anchored by Wally Ris.

The Dolphin Club

The Dolphin Club began activities this year with their annual Water Pageant. To a packed grandstand at the University pool, the swimming fraternity performed flawlessly in drills, diving acts, comedy, and record-breaking races. Again this year some of the Dolphin members made a Christmas trip to Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, and returned with bleached hair and bronzed backs. Another annual affair enjoyed by the fraternity's actives and pledges was the glutton contest, a match to see who can eat the most ice cream. The winner was awarded a china pig, with his name and the amount of ice cream he ate on its side. The year was climaxed with the Dolphins' May picnic.

MIKE HOWARD

Iowa's matmen, under the tutelage of Coach Mike Howard, had a good season this year. Led by captain Joe Scarpello, Iowa defeated Colorado State College, Bradley U., Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Michigan in successive meets. They lost two close dual meets; the first, 18-17 defeat in the hands of Illinois, the second a 15-14 defeat by Minnesota. However, they proved themselves in the conference

Track prospects were not particularly bright this year but Coach George Bresnahan laid the groundwork for Francis Cretzmeyer who will take over as track coach next year. This year's squad was built around such men as Jack Weik, a high jumper who took first place in a dual meet with Notre Dame. Jack Simpson, Dick Washington, and Rex Ploen were scheduled to run the dashes with Tom Sangster and Eric Wilson running the quarter-mile. Jack Copeland, Curley Hultman, and Elliott McDonald were half-milers. Mile runners were Jack Oxley and Ray McCreery. Hurdlers on the squad included Russ Merkel who captured fifth place in the Big Nine indoor track meet, Vern Coffey and Ike Johnson. Jim McKinstry and Bob Nelson were the shot putters and Charlie Mason and Clair Jennett handled the pole vault assignments.

Meets with Purdue, Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Indiana were also scheduled. Running on the yearling outfit were such performers as Bob Brown of Fort Dodge, State Champion high hurdler in 1947; Jim Burlingame of Clinton who was a Drake Relays Champion and a state standout in the short sprints during the 1945 season; Bill Bye of Odebolt, State Champion miler in 1946, and Jim Sandrock, sprinter from Dubuque, who ran on the state championship record-breaking 440 relay team in the 1947 state meet.

Dick Tupper, Tom Sangster, Jack Copeland, Elliott McDonald, Curly Hultman and Gene Shaver helped to round out the squad. This year, the team had four meets: the first a dual with Notre Dame which Iowa; (low score wins) Iowa 56, Notre Dame 20. Then Iowa won a meet over Minnesota—Iowa 25, Minnesota 31. In a triangular meet at Madison, Iowa lost to Wisconsin and Illinois. The conference meet was held November 14 with Iowa winning fifth place honors in the conference.

Men's Intramurals

Dr. Frederic Beebe, with the help of his competent assistants, again this year organized and carried out an efficient intramurals program for University men. The intramurals program divided men students into seven leagues through which competition was carried on. From September to June, Iowa men participated in a variety of sports. Several tournaments were held to select All-University champions from the seven leagues. League winners in the fall and winter sports are listed below.

"All work and no play—" The Women's Recreation Association, directed by Miss Virginia Dix Sterling, sponsors sport, dance and craft clubs so that Iowa coeds can get away from the books now and then for a bit of relaxation. The co-recreation activities are among the most popular features of the W. R. A. program. These include ping-pong and volleyball intramurals and the Hickhaws, Archery and Badminton clubs. The W. R. A. board of directors sponsored a special event this year, the all-university men's and women's canoe races. The board includes the W. R. A. executive officers, all W. R. A. club presidents, intramurals managers, the publicity chairman and the assistant publicity managers.

W. R. A. Clubs

The midwest Umpiring Conference at Madison, Wisconsin, was the high spot of the year for the Hockey Club, but members enjoyed an exciting time in the Homecoming hockey game with the Alumnae.

The annual softball game between Softball club members and the physical education faculty provided excitement for everyone.

The Archery club, a co-recreation group, was formed this year. Any interested student was eligible for membership.

Tournaments among members of the Badminton club promoted increased skill and enjoyment of the "birdie game".

Featured in the Basketball club's plans for this year was a play-day with other teams in Chicago. Members of this honorary club were selected on a basis of tryouts during the second semester.

The honorary Tennis Club held a round-robin tournament this year in line with the double purpose of the club—to promote interest and to produce highly skilled players.

Seals, honorary swimming club, participated in the National Telegraphic tank meet at Iowa City. They also invited Big Nine women's swimming clubs here for a play-day.

A display of Craft Club projects in leather, metal, wood, and weaving was exhibited at the W. R. A. carnival this year.

Members of Orchesis, honorary interpretive dance club, spent much time and effort working on dance techniques, movements, and composition in preparation for the annual dance recital.

Audiences and performers alike enjoyed the demonstrations of folk and square dancing put on by the Hick Hawks, a co-educational group. Five demonstration teams performed at various towns throughout Iowa.

Round and round the rink in the Women's gymnasium went the roller skaters every Friday night. This popular pastime was the feature attraction at the February Open House.

Having fun while learning was the rule in the Social dance classes. The course was offered each semester to all interested students and consisted of ten lessons taught by W. R. A. instructors.

Ever wonder who arranged the numerous intramural tournaments enjoyed by so many women students on campus? The answer is the intramurals board, under the sponsorship of W. R. A. Throughout the year, intramural competition in a variety of popular sports was offered Iowa coeds through teams of University women's housing units. The agenda included volleyball, basketball, softball, table tennis, bowling, and swimming. The activities were handled by the manager, Francis Falck, assisted by La Vonne Stock, Colleen Adams, and Miss Jean Stanicek, faculty advisor for the group.

The Intramural sports program provides Iowa women with a wide variety of activities throughout the year. The program, which is carried on through the housing units, operates on a point system. Points are awarded each team, and in individual sports the individuals, for participation and placing. Among the favorites with university students is the Mixed volleyball tournament. Twenty teams, consisting of three men and three women, joined in the fun this year with Gamma Phi Beta totting off the honors for the third consecutive year. Currier III captured first place in Women's volleyball. Ping-Pong champion this year was Sally Henry, Currier Houses, while Kappa Kappa Gamma took first place in swimming. Fast and frantic moments were shared by all the participants in the hotly-contested women's basketball tourney. The sport's wide-spread appeal made it necessary to schedule games on three nights. The victors? Chi Omega, Currier Cottages, and Madison Courts. A Bowling tournament in the spring capped the year's intramural program.

Fun! Fitness! Relaxation! The women's physical education department, headed by Dr. Elizabeth Halsey, offers Iowa coeds recreational opportunities through three channels. Every university woman is required to pass both written and performance tests in a group activity, an individual activity, swimming, body mechanics and physical efficiency. Classes in these five areas of physical education are included in the service course, which is intended to provide each woman with the ability to carry on her own recreation program. The Women's Recreation association and the intramural tournaments offer extra-curricular activities for sports-minded young ladies. The major course trains future physical education instructors.

Well—there you were all dressed up and no date that night, and Ginny called and said, why don't you go to that meeting with me? So you went. You'd thought about it before, but it was difficult breaking into a strange group alone. After the meeting, a bunch of you got together and went for hamburgers and french fries. In all, it was a painless evening. A few nights later, one of the girls called to ask if you would help her out with a little project. She needed just your combination of special talents. You never could say no to a girl who flattered you in such a nice way, so there you were stuck with a job. The job didn't last long, but you know how one thing leads to another. It seemed like you couldn't miss becoming a big wheel. At least Ginny thought so.

The national organization of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's honorary for student leadership and activities, was begun in 1914. Iowa added its chapter in the spring of 1947 as a continuation of the All For Iowa club. The ODK's first year-round program was dotted with significant activities. They conducted parliamentary law forums which the presidents of various organizations on campus attended, were co-sponsors with Mortar Board and Student Council of the Panacea show and instituted a Homecoming breakfast for former All For Iowa men which they hope will become traditional.

White flannel jackets distinguish the nine Senior women chosen for their leadership, service, character and scholarship as members of SUI's Mortar Board. Mortar Board was organized in 1918 by a convention of four existing senior honoraries and took its name and pin from the Ohio State chapter. Backing campus activities, these senior women do much to boost spirit at the State University of Iowa. They are co-sponsors of the Panacea show, hold the Smarty Party for female brains, arrange the Mother's Day weekend activities, and this year presented a silver display for senior women.

Freshmen women who prove that the little grey cells are getting a true workout receive recognition by election to Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary fraternity for freshmen women. The main requisite for initiation is a 3.5 grade point, either the first semester, or an accumulative grade level during the first year. Freshman women in the upper fifth of their class become acquainted with the ideals and functions of the society at a tea given for this purpose by the sophomore actives. Initiation ceremonies are held twice each year, and later a banquet is given in conjunction with Phi Eta Sigma, their male prototype. Prof. Grace Cochran, Miss Alma Hovey, and Miss Helen Reich are faculty advisors to Alpha Lambda Delta, which has as its main objective the encouragement and recognition of outstanding scholarship.

Phi Eta Sigma

Another Greek letter organization which, translated, means "brains, study, and grades" is Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's honorary fraternity. Established May 5, 1945, it reached full strength this year with a normal ratio of men on campus. Sophomore actives of the society hold a mixer each fall to inform prospective members of the work of the organization, which was founded to recognize, as well as encourage, high scholastic standing. The organization presented pamphlets entitled "Hints on How to Study" to general advisors for distribution to students. Election to Phi Eta Sigma comes upon the attainment of a 3.5 average the first semester, or this accumulative grade point during the freshman year. Prof. John E. Briggs is the faculty advisor of Phi Eta Sigma, which claims as honorary members Dean C. Woody Thompson, Dean Dewey B. Stuit, and President Virgil Hancher.

In addition to battling against that ever-present Daily Iowan deadline, members of Theta Sigma Phi this year managed to carry out a successful five point program. They helped with a coffee hour for journalism alumni at homecoming; instigated a series of three lectures for campus publicity chairmen; sponsored a "women in journalism" day in the spring; collaborated with the other three journalism fraternities on the Pica Ball in March, and held the traditional Matrix Table in May at which awards were given for outstanding work in the field of journalism, and new editors were announced. Membership in this national journalism honorary is composed of junior and senior women with above average scholastic standing and journalistic ability.

Sigma Delta Chi

A new high in membership and activities was achieved by Sigma Delta Chi during the boom period of 1947-48. Members of the national professional journalism fraternity for men sponsored the traditional Wayzgoose Banquet in the fall, and for the first time published the Wayzgoose Gazette, burlesque scandal sheet, for campus-wide consumption. In cooperation with Theta Sigma Phi, SDX arranged a Journalism Homecoming, a high school press conference and the Pica Ball. A series of prominent speakers appeared at bi-monthly Sigma Delta Chi meetings. The groups presented engraved pencils as awards for outstanding work in journalism and certificates for scholarship.

This is the second year that the advertising women have been banded together at SUI. Lambda chapter of Gamma Alpha Chi publishes its own monthly news-bulletin, GAX-ing, to coordinate alumni members, honorary professional members and active girls. They banqueted to commemorate their anniversary in January, heralded the dances and Pop concerts, promoted the community chest, conducted a vocational conference for the advice of their members and presented several lectures. At the national convention held in Eugene, Oregon, the local chapter was named the outstanding group in the country. Lambda chapter was commended for its progressiveness and the ingenuity of the individual members.

Alpha Delta Sigma

Alpha Delta Sigma celebrated its first anniversary at SUI this year by sponsoring a Founder's Day dinner with its female contemporary, Gamma Alpha Chi. Members of the men's advertising honorary publicized the university parties and programs at the Union, backed the Campus Chest drive, advertised the Wayzgoose Gazette and handled the publicity for the League of Women Voters' handbook. A campus market survey was conducted, and a survey for the Iowa Press Association on Iowa daily and weekly newspapers. They also planned a liberal arts pamphlet for the summer session.

Zeta Phi Eta members are selected from a variety of fields—radio, forensics, theatre, speech pathology and education. The main qualification for membership in this women's honorary speech arts fraternity is that of outstanding achievement in one's own profession. The leading project sponsored by the group this year was a series of lectures by members of the faculty. They also continued the talent file, sponsored the Varsity show for freshmen and held a joint luncheon with the Cedar Rapids chapter of the alumni. Zeta Phi Eta was the first professional fraternity for women to be organized in the United States and was instituted in 1893. Sigma chapter came to Iowa in May, 1936.

"Cultural Patterns" was the 1947-48 theme carried out by members of Pi Lambda Theta, women's national educational honorary. Members of the fraternity sponsored a panel discussion on health for the elementary school child, to which Iowa City teachers were invited; sent boxes of supplies and clothing to schools in Germany, and presented an award to the outstanding undergraduate in education. In conjunction with Phi Delta Kappa, they fostered the idea of a portrait of Professor Maude McBroom. Composed of outstanding junior, senior and graduate students, Theta chapter was established at Iowa in 1920.

Delta Sigma Pi

Delta Sigma Pi is the largest commerce organization in the United States, and the Iowa chapter's membership of nearly sixty is its greatest. During the 1947-48 school year, the Iowa group conducted industrial tours and presented several lecturers in the field of commerce. Social activities included parties and dances. At the annual Christmas formal, Marilyn Carstens was chosen queen and won in a national contest held by the New Jersey chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. Delta Sigma Pi honorary has been in action at SUI since 1935.

Members of this commerce fraternity demonstrated their flair for business by successfully sponsoring a number of projects during 1947-48. They had a joint luncheon with Delta Sigma Pi, held monthly dinners with faculty guests and speakers, sold magazine subscriptions to fill the national coffers, and planned various parties and mixers, including the Founder's Day dinner in February at which initiation of new members was held. Phi Gamma Nu membership of 49 was a new high—33 members were pledged last fall. Phi Gamma Nu was organized nationally in 1924, while SUI's Delta chapter began business in 1928.

"The Elegant Mr. Emperor," this year's Panacea show, brought down the house every night for a week and had hundreds of Iowa students looking forward eagerly to next year's all-campus musical comedy. Panacea was originated a year ago by Student Council, Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa to supply a new kind of entertainment for the campus and to provide an opportunity for original writing and acting. Produced by a committee formed from the three sponsoring groups, "The Elegant Mr. Emperor" was written by Herb Kanzell who also wrote the lyrics. Larry Barrett wrote the show's music and Harold Hayes was director this year. Profits from the show go into the Panacea Fund for future productions.

Efficiency and assistance in the registration of University students is the aim of the Registration committee. Delegated by Dr. H. Active only during the two registration weeks, the Registration committee was an invaluable assistant to students and faculty alike during that time.

Union Board supervises the planning of the various activities which take place at the Iowa Memorial Union. These activities may be either social or educational, they may range from billiard exhibitions to lectures on poetry, but their common purpose is to enable more students to benefit by use of Union facilities. The 16-member Union Board includes representatives from all the colleges of the university. Members are chosen on a basis of leadership, scholarship and service displayed while working on a Union board subcommittee. The board creates and directs its own policies and determines the duties of the subcommittees. Union Board this year innovated semi-classical music programs, weekly free movies, listening parties for the football broadcasts and the Carnival of Bands, all at the Union.

Union Board Subcommittees

The seven Union board subcommittees carry out many of the plans of Union Board. Each committee is headed by a member of the board and has its own specific duties. The art displays in the Iowa Memorial Union lounge, for example, are a fine arts committee project. The subcommittees each year sponsor a great variety of events. The house and library committee is responsible for the coffee hours, library chats and the annual Christmas party. The games committee handles ping-pong, chess and checker tournaments and many other contests. Newest of the subcommittees is the movie committee, created this year to take charge of the movies shown at the Union.

Lady, do you know the score? If not, consult your copy of "Code for Coeds". A booklet on what every young girl should know about life at the University of Iowa, the Code is published by the University Women's Association. A copy is sent to every woman entering the university. The University Women's Association includes all undergraduate women of the colleges of Liberal Arts, Pharmacy and Commerce. Its objectives are to serve the university, to develop leadership among university women and to unite campus organizations. To this end, the association helps with Freshman Orientation, sponsors the springtime University Sing—a song festival at which all housing units compete—and Recognition Day, at which announcement is made of the year's outstanding achievements by SUI women, and the new officers for women's housing units are presented.

"Girl of the Century" was the theme for this year's University Women's Association orientation program, in line with the university's centennial celebration. The Orientation Council strove for variety in their plans to introduce new women to university activities, to the recreational facilities of the Iowa campus and to the mental process known as "studying". During the summer the council sent letters to enrollees reminding them of their fall orientation date. Freshman and transfer women were divided into separate groups for the orientation. A mass meeting was first on the program, following which the groups were entertained by a round of informal parties, dances and coke dates. President and Mrs. Hancher officially welcomed the newcomers at a tea in the president's home.

Judiciary Board

The Central Judiciary Board was created by UWA to set up regulations for Iowa women and to review infractions of these regulations. This board, which functions as an independent unit, is composed of a president and one representative apiece from the Panhellenic association, women's dormitories, Westlawn and Town Women. Miss Helen Focht, UWA; Miss Eugenia Hoffert, Currier; Miss Pat Hansen, Town Women, and Miss Helen Reich, Panhellenic Association, are advisors. The board meets once a week with the advisors to formulate regulations and discuss violations. This year the board extended its activities to include a second weekly meeting, without the advisors, at which offenders were given hearings.

The gay life won't last forever. That most Iowa students will one day have to venture into the harsh outside world is the concern of the University Women's Association Vocational Conference. It tries to give each student a picture of his future. A central committee composed of students and faculty members formulates and carries out plans for the vocational conferences. In these conferences the student is advised about opportunities in his chosen field by people who are successful in that field. Among the speakers brought to SUI this year by the central committee were persons prominent in radio, journalism and commerce. Panel discussions, an innovation in vocational conferences here, covered education and hospital and organization work.

Information First

Why be embarrassed? Be informed! To aid SUI students in keeping up with the world, Information First presents a series of informal lectures on contemporary problems to which everyone is welcome to attend. This year Information First, a UWA activity, celebrated its fifth birthday. Among the speakers at this year's lectures were Guy Gillette, ex-senator from Iowa; Richard Wilson, Washington correspondent for the Des Moines Register; Fayette Sherman, Hormel Company employment manager, and Hew Roberts of the SUI faculty. A committee of five women, appointed by the UWA council, invites, entertains and introduces the speakers. Miss Helen Focht is advisor for the group.

Newest brain child of the University Women's association was the Freshman council, created this year to establish and prepare girls for leadership in the association. During its founding year, the council proved to be a vitally important cog in the organization of campus activities. Consisting of fifteen women selected by Orientation and Vocational Conference committee members, the Freshman Council did an outstanding job which served as an example for future councils. Not only did this group conduct the second semester Orientation program, and hold a coffee hour for foreign students, but it also was represented by a member serving on each major U. W. A. committee. The Freshman Council sent representatives to each regular U. W. A. meeting in addition to their own bi-monthly meetings. Thus U. W. A. obtained a representative freshman viewpoint on all matters.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics club, open to any girl enrolled in a Home Economics course, combines both service and recreational functions in its program. During the year it sponsored a number of activities intended to show members various ways to use their home economics training. Starting last fall, the club presented a series of lectures concerning careers. Miss Maxine McDivitt gave an address on opportunities in foods, Mrs. M. Ball discussed nutrition specialties and Miss Marie McCulley spoke on buying and merchandising. The club highlighted the Christmas season with a banquet for members. Home Economics club members were hostesses to foreign women students at several meetings this spring. The annual baked-bean supper capped the year's activities.

Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary service fraternity, stands for the principles of scouting—leadership, friendship and service. Omicron chapter this year set an example of international good will by sending regular support to a small Finnish boy, whom they have “adopted”. Members of Alpha Phi Omega put their ideals into practice on the Iowa campus this year by sponsoring and assisting in such projects as Freshman Orientation, campus tours, and a hospital visitation program. Membership in Alpha Phi Omega is open to university men who are or have been affiliated with the scouting movement, and who are interested in helping to further the Alpha Phi Omega program of service to the campus, community, nation and world.

With 765 members, the Iowa Mountaineers, Inc. have the distinction of being the largest SUI organization and the largest outdoor club in the middle west. This year the group made outings to Idaho's Sawtooth Range in August, and to the High Peaks of Mexico in December. Color travelogues and talks by explorers, mountaineers, vagabond photographers and world travelers were an important part of the Club's indoor program. In addition to climbing, sports such as skiing, ice skating, hiking, horseback riding and camping rounded out the mountaineers' schedule.

A federal world government with powers adequate to prevent war has always been the aim of United World Federalists. The Iowa Chapter of UWF did all in its power during the year to encourage Iowa students to think and act on world government through United Nations. This year, the group worked through both political parties in an effort to make public officials become internationally-minded. A "letters to Congress" drive was carried on in April and off-campus speakers were brought to the student body by the Federalists.

There is a strong possibility that a number of SUI students will play an important role in Iowa commerce ten years from now. As members of the Collegiate Chamber of Commerce, these students are already gaining insight into the future. The commerce organization this year played host to several speakers from various branches of Iowa business. Among the guests were Arthur Brayton of the Convention bureau of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, and Rodney Q. Selby of the Iowa Development service. During its third year of existence at SUI, the Collegiate Chamber of Commerce also sponsored the annual Commerce Mart, a careers conference, and supported a business placement service for commerce and economics seniors.

Members of the Art Guild, social organization for art students, concentrated this year on presenting some excellent movies at SUI. The Guild sponsored the University Film Society's series of twelve outstanding American and foreign film revivals and brought to the campus such old-time successes as "Camille", "The Fall of the House of Usher," and "The Puritan". As a contribution to the University art collection the Guild purchased DeMartini's "Self-Portrait", which now hangs in the main office of the Art building. Guild members also sponsored dances, a picnic and a hayride. Purpose of the Art Guild is to provide social and educational activities for its members, and to aid the Art department in furthering its program.

Hi-Y Day topped off the Y.M.C.A.'s full program this year. Senior Hi-Y boys from throughout the state were introduced to S.U.I. and to the activities of the Y.M.C.A. on this campus. A trip to the Convalescent home pointed out the Y.M.C.A.'s accent on service. Sunday school classes, daily friendship visits, and recreation hours were regular Y.M.C.A. events for the convalescing children. The boys heard about the Travel Bureau, established to bring together prospective riders and students driving home. The Christmas sing held in the Union was Y.M.C.A.-sponsored; and the Y.M.C.A. quartets sang at the Woody Herman dance and over the radio.

Hillel Foundation

International problems were a significant subject for Hillel discussions this year. The Foundation's Forum on Palestinian Affairs brought to the group Maurice Samuels, Elias Newman, and Arnold Fox; and Professors Joseph Dunner, Kurt Schaefer, and George Mosse. During the year, speakers from various faiths represented on the campus visited the Foundation. In May, the Hillel House chapel was dedicated to the memory of Henry Monsky. Hillel's social program included a hayrack ride, a Halloween Hard Times party, the Winter Dance, and a spring formal. Sunday night suppers were prepared by the students. Foundation members were host to their parents at the annual Parents Banquet in April.

The Student Christian Council coordinates Protestant activities on the campus. The members are representatives from each Protestant student religious organization. Working through three commissions—World Service, Students from Other Lands, and Social Action—the Council sponsored an International Soiree, clothing drive, weekly luncheon forums, and a social action program. For Religion in Life Week, February 8–13, men of national recognition were brought to the campus to conduct classroom lectures, seminars, informal discussion in housing units and personal conferences with students.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Association is the Episcopal Church's SUI student organization. The Preaching Mission held in April helped Episcopal students review the Christian faith and reaffirm their enthusiasm in their religion. The Rev. Bonnell Spencer led services every evening during the week. Throughout the year, fun was mixed with serious thought in a program of study, service, giving, worship, evangelism and unity. Students and faculty met together at a banquet held the first of the year. Corporate Communion breakfasts were held once a month. Miss Becky Davis helped the group as its sponsor.

Lutheran Student Association redoubled its efforts this year to raise funds to aid destitute students in other parts of the world. Social event of the year was the annual winter banquet with guest speaker Dr. Morris Wee, executive director of the Student Service commission of the National Lutheran council. L. S. A. held a freshman party, and a Christmas Smorgasbord and pageant. On Sunday evenings, members met for supper and a vesper service. During the week they gathered at the Lutheran Student house to enjoy the fireplace they have built in the backyard, to help construct a meditation chapel, or just for fun and relaxation.

Membership in Beta chapter of Kappa Phi, national Methodist women's sorority, is open to all Methodist women attending SUI. The purpose of Kappa Phi is to train women for church leadership in their own communities. As partial fulfillment of this training, the group this year helped at church dinners and in the church-hour nursery. In addition to the two regular meetings a month—which are usually followed by a social hour—Kappa Phi held Christmas and Valentine's Day parties. The year's plans were laid with an eye to the National Council meeting in June at Wellesley College in Massachusetts. Mrs. C. G. Sample sponsored the group.

Wesley Foundation

Members of Wesley Foundation participated in fund raising campaigns this year with the intention of building a new student center within the next three years. Their social action committee collected clothing for Europe, and their extension department sent teams of student religious leaders to conduct services and youth meetings at churches throughout the state. Helping to make the Methodists' year a successful one were the "Go Wesley" party, the Thanksgiving Day dinner for those unable to get home, informal fireside discussions, the Christmas party at the Center, and the presentation of three major religious dramas by the Wesley Players.

Westminster Fellowship

The Westminster Foundation, a national organization for Presbyterian students, has served generations of S.U.I. students. Chief among its activities are the Westminster Fellowship and the Westminster choir. This student choir, under the direction of Prof. Thomas Muir, presents at least two special concerts a year in addition to singing at all regular worship services. The Fellowship's comprehensive religious and social program is carried on seven days a week by a council of fifty students under the supervision of Dr. P. Hewison Pollock and Mrs. B. N. Covert. A student lounge in the church is open daily to anyone who cares to drop in for study or relaxation. A new student center will be built as soon as funds and materials are available.

Social

You gathered together to talk of love, which is a very popular extra-curricular activity around campus. It was that serio-comic type of love, a bantering good time. The dance floor was crowded, the music was gone, fella, gone. Knocked out. Then the fanfare sounded and yea! the queen did come forth in all her regal glory. Here's a question for you—Do you love a beauty just because she is beautiful, or is she a beauty because you love her? That smooth-cheek you're dancing with seems mighty fine, but maybe you are prejudiced. The clock didn't await your pleasure, Monsieur, so the party ended. Time left to run for a cup of coffee. You maximize your pleasures by settling for half a cup. You met the deadline, but yikes! the evening was too short. How about another date? Fine!

In order to sponsor and promote all-university parties, the executive councils of the Union Board and Student Council select a group of students to serve for a period of one year on the Central Party Committee. Along with contract arrangements, the Committee handled such details as ticket sales, publicity, decorations and the rental of the Union which were only a few of the problems to be settled before a dance or any other party could take place. Thanks to the experience and efficiency of the committee, it was possible to bring "name-bands" such as Tex Beneke, Ray McKinley, and Freddy Nagle to the Iowa campus along with concerts by such celebrities as Victor Borge and Alec Templeton.

McKinley was the first of a cornucopia of big name bands to come to campus this year. Central Party Committee chalked up another huge success and promised to reap even bigger and better events for the future.

Dad's Day Dance

Iowa won a football victory over Minnesota and the Central Party Committee won another social victory with the annual Dad's Day dance on Friday, November 14, in the Iowa Union. Larry Barrett, SUI's own favorite, provided the music for the "Pops" and offspring. Along with the regular swingtime numbers, Barrett reviewed the songs of The Dove and the Duck, Panacea show of 1947. On, Iowa!

The medics got together for their big night of the year and chose their queen of queens and her attendants at their annual dance. Margaret McAllister was named queen and her attendants were Mildred Benjergdes and Betty Schmidt.

The queen drew numbers out of a hat and the grand gift of the door prizes was a portable radio. Larry Barrett and his band provided the music for the dance and the committee in charge of operations consisted of Richard Apfel, Lumir Proshek, Joseph Trotzic and Darl Vander Ploeg.

Caps Caprice

Students in the school of nursing presented their annual semi-formal dance in the main lounge of the Iowa Union Saturday, December 13. The dance was carried out in the true yuletide spirit with Christmas trees and other holiday decorations festooning the lounge. During the intermission a tea was held with Miss Grace McGurg and Mrs. Donald Houy acting as hostesses. Miss Lee Westervelt was in charge of the dance and music was by Larry Barrett and his band.

Town Men's Hobo Party

In the Iowa Union on March 5, the Town Men of Iowa City met for a "Hobo" rendezvous. Rex Parks of Iowa City was named "King" and Betty Miller of North English was "Queen" of the festive gathering which took place in the gaily decorated YMCA rooms. Costumes for the party ranged from gunny sack trousers to the "traditional red bandana" while tin cans, train schedules and various other signs of the open road provided the necessary and proper background.

Prize Prom

The Pharmacy "pill-rollers" gathered for their annual "Prize Prom" in the main lounge of the Iowa Union on March 5. "It's in the bag" was the slogan for the dance and more true words have yet to be heard. Each couple received a "sample bag" containing the various goods one sees in the drug stores of today and not one person left the party empty handed.

During the course of the evening a series of prizes was given away, valued at several hundred dollars, which ranged from make-up kits to a set of pharmacist's graduated scales. The prizes were gifts of the various druggist supply companies throughout the United States who annually act as co-sponsors of the dance. Bill Meardon and his orchestra provided the music and Bill Siebert acted as master of ceremonies.

Hillcrest Jinx Jump

In the Hillcrest dining rooms on Friday, February 13, the men of Hillcrest dormitory enjoyed the music of Jimmy Russell at an informal dance. Despite the fact that Friday the 13th is a day of superstition and expectant tragedies the Hillcrest Jinx proved to be good fun for all. Aaron Jones and Roger Hanson were in charge of the arrangements.

Interfraternity Pledge Prom

With a backdrop decorated with copies of all the various pledge pins, the PADDLE CLUB, interfraternity pledge dance, was held in the lounge of the Iowa Union on Friday, February 6. During the intermission it was announced that the pledges of all the fraternities chose Frances Whisler to be their Queen. Her attendants were Sally Watson and Doris Doyle. Music for the affair was provided by Larry Barrett and his band. The committee in charge of arrangements included Bill Sindlinger, Kirk Chaney, Jim Du Bois and Lloyd Jackson.

Mecca Ball

Sure and it was a great day for the engineers when the Blarney Stone was found this year by sixteen students on March 15! Climaxing the Mecca week celebration, the engineers held their annual dance in the Union lounge on Saturday, March 20. Carolyn Cook reigned as queen and her attendants were Maybelle Burrill, Jacque Steele, Jean Shearer and Doris Andersen. Nat Towles and his band provided the music and the committee for the dance consisted of Edwin Sincox, Richard Kidd and Daniel Dillinger, with Howard Ward as chairman.

You were walking along worrying about tomorrow's test when it hit you, kind of sudden like, that maybe it was the last one you'd ever take. You tried to smile and frown at the same time but your face got confused and didn't know which to do. Your feet forgot to walk so fast, too. You've just got to face life now—how many times have you heard those words before? You're big, you're grown up, you're mature now. You've known the taste of love. Life should be a snap. Why, just look! confidence fairly seeps out of your skin. If not to yourself, who is there to look up to? It's your oyster now. Bromides! It's not true, something screams. As your indignation rose your pace quickened unconsciously. There'll always be another test, you said right out loud. You grinned foolishly when you realized that you were talking to yourself, but you were satisfied and a little happier. It's odd about that happiness.

Law School Association

The Law School Association includes every law student at the University. Its primary function is to coordinate law activities and promote events in which the Law School has an interest. An informal smoker in October helped students and faculty members become acquainted. The Association also sponsored the annual Barristers Ball which was planned by one representative from each legal fraternity and one from the independent association. The climax of the year's activities was Supreme Court Day which marks the final episode in the Law Club arguments. These arguments are in the form of an elimination contest and result in the selection of the four most skilled and persuasive men who argue, debate-fashion, before the Supreme Court of Iowa.

Gamma Eta Gamma law fraternity was founded to promote scholarship and to make a full schedule of social activities easily available to its members. The fraternity's program was well filled this year with stag parties, smokers, informal dances, and luncheons. At these luncheons, which were held twice a month, outstanding men in the legal profession were selected as guest speakers. The Annual Founders' Day Banquet was held in October. The President of the Iowa State Bar Association gave the address.

Delta Theta Pi legal fraternity has a membership of sixty-five men, which makes it one of the largest professional fraternities on the campus. Among the fraternity's academic aid projects for the year was a course review for freshmen, conducted by "Judge" Palmer. Monthly luncheons with prominent lawyers as guest speakers, smokers, and monthly parties composed the social program. The biggest social affair was the annual spring party. The purpose of this organization is set forth in the official publication of the fraternity: "To unite fraternally, congenial students of the law, to lead them to high, scholarly, and legal learning, to surround them with an environment such that the traditions of the law . . . may descend upon them."

Phi Delta Phi

Three Phi Delta Phi's, Bryce M. Fisher, Ross H. Sidney and Ben C. Birdsall, were among the four students who presented the Senior Law Club Argument before the Iowa Supreme Court for annual Supreme Court Day. Robert L. Bliss and G. Duane Vieth participated in the Junior Law Club Arguments before District Judges of the state of Iowa. Phillip W. Tone, a February graduate, was editor of the Iowa Law Review. Other members of the fraternity who contributed to the Law Review were Robert F. Barclay, Russell G. Buchanan, Wallace W. Butler, Bryce M. Fisher, Ralph W. Gearhart, Hiram C. Houghton, Peter A. Seip, Ross H. Sidney, R. Hohn Swanson, G. Duane Vieth, Robert Hornbaker, F. Donald Sokol, Robert C. Gross and Martin J. Purcell. Phi Delta Phi was successful in athletics also and were strong contenders in all phases of intramural activities. Phi Delta Phi social events included monthly luncheons, the Initiation Banquet, a Christmas dinner dance, and numerous after-game parties.

Hammond Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity was organized on the Iowa campus to provide social and scholastic activities for its members. Popular events this year were monthly luncheons featuring prominent attorneys and other outside speakers, and informal and stag parties held in the fraternity's official clubrooms. Among the social activities of Phi Alpha Delta was the opening dinner party following the initiation of pledges. To help its members to better understand their profession through a pleasant social environment and sympathetic academic surroundings is one of the purposes of this fraternity.

Student Nurses Association

The Student Nurses' Association strives for the improvement of the conditions and standards set up for the women in the school of nursing. Every woman in the school of nursing is a member of the organization. The governing body is the Student Nurses' Council and the student body elects its members. This year, activities of the organization included sponsoring informal parties and furnishing material for the reading room. And for the first time an orientation program was set up for freshmen girls, which proved very successful. The freshmen were also entertained at a tea early in the year. The outstanding social event of the year was the annual Caps' Caprice, semiformal dance at the Iowa Union, which was held just before Christmas.

Sigma Theta Tau

To promote higher educational standards and to sponsor educational research is the purpose of Sigma Theta Tau, national honorary society of nursing. The group's social activities during the school year of 1947-48 included a spring formal banquet honoring the new members, and the annual Christmas party at which the election of new officers was held. Members of Sigma Theta Tau also sold Christmas cards as a money-making project. Professional interest, promise in the field of nursing and scholastic achievement are the basis of membership into Sigma Theta Tau.

The Associated Students of Engineering includes all students enrolled in the College of Engineering. A. S. E. sponsors the contest for the designing and erection of the annual Homecoming monument and the traditional Mecca week. This year, during Mecca week, an exhibition of electrical and chemical engineering feats was displayed; the traditional ceremony presenting the Blarney Stone buried by the last graduating class was made; and climaxing the week's gaiety was the Mecca Ball at which the Mecca Queen and her attendants were presented. Supervision of election of class officers, financial responsibility for the official engineering publication, Transit, and the sponsoring of the senior engineering year book were among the many activities of the organization.

The Transit

The Iowa Transit, official magazine of the Associated Students of Engineering, is the oldest student publication on this campus. Founded in 1890, this monthly magazine is sponsored by the Associated Students of Engineering. Transit is governed by the Transit Board composed of five students and four faculty members, but is entirely compiled and published by engineering students. This year, the staff inaugurated a plan in which the humanization of engineering was presented more fully, in an attempt to keep the publication from becoming too technical. The Transit featured articles on new technical developments and listed engineering organizations, their qualifications and activities. Transit received second place award for alumni news at the last convention of Engineering College Magazines Associated.

Tau Beta Pi

Tau Beta Pi, honorary fraternity for junior, senior and graduate engineers, corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa in Liberal arts. Members are chosen from the upper percentages of the junior and senior classes as well as outstanding men in the engineering field. Service, as well as scholarship, is stressed by Tau Beta Pi. This year the organization once again conducted an instructor and course rating program in the college of engineering, worked on an engineering educational movie to be shown in high schools throughout the state, and sponsored a student-faculty breakfast. Robert Stoker won the freshman scholastic award offered by Tau Beta Pi.

Kappa Epsilon

Kappa Epsilon, national pharmacy sorority, was established on the Iowa campus in 1921. This year Kappa Epsilon was represented at the national convention at Madison, Wis., and alumnae and faculty were honored at a party inaugurating the 1947-48 school year. A Christmas party highlighted the year's social program. Last fall the annual "coke" party was held for freshman girls in pharmacy, and October witnessed the initiation and pledging of new members. The aim of Kappa Epsilon is to promote cooperation between students and faculty, to strive for higher scholarship, and to provide bonds of friendship between girls in pharmacy.
